ADDRESS

OF THE

HOUSE OF COMMONS OF GREAT BRITAIN

TO

MAJESTY,

RESPECTING

The Public Records of the Kingdom.

JOURNAL OF THE HOUSE OF COMMONS,
Veneris, 11° die Julii, Anno 40° Georgii 3^tii^ Regis, 1800.

Most Gracious Sovereign,

WE, Your MAJESTY's most dutiful and loyal Subjects, the Commons of Great Britain in Parliament assembled, having taken into our Consideration the State of the Public Records of this Kingdom, and the Necessity of providing for the better Arrangement, Preservation, and more convenient Use of the same, humbly beg leave to lay before Your Majesty the Report of our Proceedings thereon; and to represent to Your Majesty, that in several of the Principal Offices we have found the Public Records preserved with great Order and Regularity, and in some few, with a Method and Care which are exemplary; but that, in many of the most important Offices, they are wholly unarranged, undescribed, and unascertained; that some of them are exposed to Erasure, Alteration, and Embezzlement, and others are lodged in Places where they are daily perishing by Damp, or incurring a continual Risk of Destruction by Fire.

A Period of nearly Seventy Years has elapsed since the last General Parliamentary Inquiry upon this Subject; and, during this Interval of Time, the Change which has taken place in the Language and written Character of Judicial Proceedings, as well as the large Accumulation of Materials which has been progressively superadded in every Department, have increased the Difficulties of methodizing the several Repositories, or applying their Contents to Purposes of practical Use.

In the Course of our Inquiry we have found that many of the Public Buildings allotted to these Uses, and especially those Buildings which belong to Your Majesty's Exchequer in all its Branches, comprehending the ancient Records and Muniments of the Rights and Possessions of the Crown, and the Vouchers and Accounts of the Public Revenues and Expenditure, are in a State so incommodious and insecure, as to require immediate Attention.

It has also appeared to us, that the salutary Measures heretofore adopted by Your Majesty's Authority, for methodizing the Contents of some of the principal Repositories of Your Majesty's Records and Papers of State, might also be extended to many other Repositories, with Consequences highly beneficial to the Public Service.

And the same Motives which encouraged our Predecessors to intreat Your Majesty's Directions for printing the ancient Records of Domesday, and the Rolls of Parliament, have also induced us to submit to Your Majesty's Wisdom, our Desire of extending the same Measure to other ancient and valuable Monuments of our History, Laws, and Government.

Your faithful Commons do therefore most humbly beseech Your Majesty, that You will be graciously pleased to give such Directions as Your Majesty, in Your great Wisdom, shall think fit, for the better Preservation, Arrangement, and more convenient Use of the Public Records of this Kingdom.

And we beg leave further to assure Your Majesty, that whatever extraordinary Expenses may be incurred by the Directions which Your Majesty in Your great Wisdom shall think fit to give on this Occasion, shall be chearfully provided for and made good by your faithful Commons.

JOURNAL OF THE HOUSE OF COMMONS,

Jovis, 17° die Julii;

Anno 40° Georgii 3ti Regis, 1800.

Mr. Chancellor of the Exchequer reported to the House, That their Address of Friday last (that His Majesty would be graciously pleased to give such Directions as He shall think fit, for the better Preservation, Arrangement, and more convenient Use of the Public Records of this Kingdom; and to assure His Majesty, that whatever extraordinary Expenses may be incurred by the Directions which His Majesty shall think fit to give on this Occasion, shall be made good by His faithful Commons) had been presented to His Majesty; and that His Majesty had commanded him to acquaint this House, that He will give Directions as desired by the said Address.

PREFACE.

PREFACE.

THE Collection, of which this is the first volume, includes all the Records which shew the constituent parts of the ancient legislative and remedial Assemblies of England, beginning with the Reign of Edward I., the period when they first assumed a definite organization. Before this era, neither the principles nor the practice of the Constitution can be ascertained with certainty; but, under the government of Edward, a settled and uniform usage may be discerned, from whence the Parliament received an organization nearly approaching to the form in which it now subsists. Considerable obscurity prevails with respect to the rights and functions of the individuals who enjoyed the privilege or were subjected to the duty of attendance. The fact, however, of such attendance is evinced by documents existing in a series which, although not entirely unbroken, is sufficiently complete to afford a satisfactory view of the Estates, Orders, and Members who composed the great Councils of the Realm. These documents may be arranged under the following sections:

I. Writs of Summons addressed to the Prelates, the Earls, and to the individuals generally, but not invariably, designated as "Barones," "Proceres," or "Magnates;" and also to the Justices, Clerks, and others of the Council.—In most instances the writs are extant on the dorses of the Close Roll, upon which, each set of writs appears to have been entered or enrolled, from a pannel or schedule (such as is now termed a Parliamentary Pawn) which remained on the file. * Two only of these pannels have been found; the one belonging to the Reign of Henry III., and the other to the Reign of Edw. II. Occasionally the Clerks of the Chancery contented themselves with tacking the pannel to the roll; (the breviate of the writs issued for the Council of the 16 Ed. I. may be quoted as an exemplification of this practice, p. 18. No. 1.). Most of the riders or schedules now attached to the rolls appear to be pannels of this description; and, had it not been for the precaution of annexing them to the larger record, the information which they convey, would have been lost. All documents which bore a direct relation to the rights of property or to judicial proceedings were recorded in the Chancery with considerable care, but much less attention was paid to those which referred only to current transactions; and it is probable that the neglect of the Clerks of the Chancery in omitting to enrol the pannels is the principal cause of the paucity of Parliamentary Writs of Summons in the earlier periods. Of original Writs of Summons, fifteen belonging to 34 Ed. I. (pp. 165, 166. Nos. 4 to 20.) were found in the bundle which contains the Writs of Election of that year.

II. Proxies of the Prelates, Earls, and "Proceres."—It is stated by Selden † and Hody ‡, that Proxy Rolls were formerly extant in the Tower. The Editor has been informed that none can now be found; and, as it appears from these writers that the Records were much decayed, it is to be apprehended that they have since perished. About fifty original Proxies, principally of the Reign of Edw. II., have been preserved amongst the Parliamentary Petitions, and they will appear in their proper order.

III. Precepts and Mandates issued by the Metropolitan and Diocesan Prelates, pursuant to the Præmunientes Clause in the Writs of Summons, requiring the attendance of the inferior Clergy; and Procurations executed by the Capitular and Parochial Clergy, pursuant to such precepts and mandates.—Some of these documents have been obtained from the Monastic Lieger Books in the Museum and elsewhere; the best information, however, is derived from Episcopal and Capitular Registers; and His Grace The Archbishop of Canterbury, and The Honourable and Very Reverend The Dean of Canterbury, having permitted the Editor to examine the Archives both of Lambeth Palace and of the Cathedral, the series of precepts and procurations, so far as relates to the See of Canterbury, has been completed.

IV. Writs for the Election of the Members of the Commons House of Parliament, and Returns.—The enrolments of these writs, which usually accompany the enrolments of the Writs of Summons, require no peculiar remark. The original writs and returns, the most important and valuable portion of the present work, were first assorted by Prynne, who, in the Dedication of the "Brevia Parliamentaria Rediviva," addressed to Charles II., has described his proceedings with his characteristic quaintness and verbosity:—"No sooner received I your "Royal Patent (passed without fees) for the Custody of your antient Records in your Tower of

* They are now kept in the Petty Bag Office. † Privileges of the Baronage, p. xci. ‡ On Convocations, p. 390.

" other usefull Records and sundry rare Antiquities specially relating to the Parliaments of " England) I found no lesse than ninety-seven parcells of original writs for so many Parlia-
" ments, issued to Sheriffs and others, during the Reigns of King Ed. 1. 2. 3., Ric. 2.,
" Hen. 4. 5. 6., with their respective Retorns, Cedules, and Indentures, dispersed in broken
" fragments; all which, with extraordinarie pains, I have since marshalled into distinct bundles,
" in an alphabetical and chronological method, for publick use and ready search; besides
" above one hundred and thirty several parcels of Parliament Procurations and Petitions in " these Kings Reignes, confusedly intermixed with many thousands of other Writs and
" Records." After the publication of the Second Part of the " Brevia Parliamentaria," Prynne discovered the writs of the 25 Edw. I., which he printed in his collection of records (Vol. iii. p. 736, 737); and at a subsequent period some further additions appear to have been made to the bundles by the searches of Dr. Brady and Holmes. — They are now kept in a press in the Record Room in the Wakefield Tower, from whence they were produced to the Editor. These documents have sustained greater injury than any other species of Record. A practice formerly prevailed, of washing the indorsed Returns with tincture of galls for the purpose of restoring the faded writing: by this process a temporary distinctness is obtained, but in the course of a few years the parchment subjected to this process assumes a deep brown colour, and the writing is almost entirely obliterated; sometimes also the portions which have been washed, scale off, and the original surface of the parchment is then completely carried away. The writs also appear to have suffered greatly from damp, probably whilst in " Cæsar's Chapel." They were tied up in small close bundles, and the effects of compression and moisture have, to use Prynne's expression, so cankered the parchment, that when it is touched it crumbles into dust. From these writs Prynne compiled " his Alphabetical and Chronological Catalogues of the Knights, Citizens, and Burgesses;" (Brevia Parl. Rediviva, Sec. I. II. III. and IV.—Fourth Part of a Brief Reg', &c. Sec. XI. and XII.) a task which he has taken great pains to vindicate from the frivolous objections of " injudicious cavillers," at the same time that he expatiates upon its difficulty * : —

* In the body of his work Prynne adduces eight arguments to prove its utility, besides four " considerations," which are superadded in the Preface : — " 1. In point of history, by discovering, recording to the present age and posterity, who were the most eminent, " popular, potent, discreet, and able Knights, Esquires, and Gentlemen, in every Shire, fittest to serve their country in Parliament in " former ages; who were the wisest members of the Commons House in most of our antient Parliaments; the chief promoters of any " good laws, Petitions made or answered in them for the people's good; this being the first and only catalogue of our antient Knights " of Shires yet collected or published to the world. 2. In relation to Heraldry, by informing all who were the most honourable, noble, " wealthy, antient Knights, Esquires, Gentlemen, and Families, in every County of the Realm; and what honourable persons, Knights, " Esquires, and Gentlemen have inherited, not only their ancestors lands, estates, and honors, but their wisedom, vertues, countrie's " affections, and publick Parliamentary trusts, and who have degenerated from them. 3. It may and should excite the surviving heirs, " and posterities of these antient Knights of Shires, to imitate if not emulate their ancestors vertues, and to furnish themselves with " all such ornaments, abilities of learning, art, experience, as may enable them to serve their King and Country in the highest Court " and Counsell of Parliament, as Knights or Burgesses, upon all occasions, and indear them to the counties wherein they live. " 4. It may sufficiently minde the greatest, richest, wisest, and antientist Lords, Knights, Citizens, and Members of Parliament, that " they are all mortal, and shall ere long return to their dust, if not buried in oblivion, as well as all these their predecessors, who " are long since rotted in their tombes, and quite forgotten like dead men out of minde. 5. It may instruct all ambitious, covetous

" How laborious this publication hath proved to me in its collection, correction, examination, and " re-examination with the original Records, Writs, and Retornes, multiplicity of Figures, Records, " and Correction at the Presse, is best known to myself, having for some months space ingrossed " most of the hours alotted to my repastes, natural rest, and refreshment every night, by reason " of my other publick imployments, diversions all the day; and of those Christmas Holy-daies " or Play-daies, which I have intended to have spent in other studies in order to that publick " service which I am very shortly to pay to my Nursing Mother (the Honourable Society of " Lincolnes Inne) if God send me time and life. If these my extraordinary lucubrations prove " beneficial to the publick, or delightfull, usefull recreations to any lovers of revived Antiquities, " or other readers, I shall only desire their candid acceptation of them, which I presume may " demerit as much veneration from Scholars and Antiquaries, as Mr. Cambdens Remaines, " Vestegans Restitution of decayed Antiquities, Mr. Weavers Funeral Monuments, or the " publication of that usefull large volume, 1652, intituled Historiæ Angl. Scriptores x. ex " vetustis Manuscriptis nunc primum in lucem editi, by the assistance of many learned Antiquaries, " since there were many Manuscript Copies of these published Antiquities extant in publick or " private Libraries, well known to sundry persons studious of Antiquities; where as most of " these here published are contained only in the Records I newly rescued and raysed from the " grave, being unknown to, unperused by, any of this or the former generation." (Brevia Parliamentaria Rediviva, Pref.) Yet, notwithstanding the pains which this most laborious Antiquary has bestowed upon his work, it is by no means remarkable for accuracy. He has fallen into many important errors in his readings of the names; and some entire sets of writs are referred to years to which they do not belong. Prynne was followed by Browne Willis, who, in his " Notitia Parliamentaria," intended to have given complete lists of the Knights, Citizens, and Burgesses, which he has arranged according to Counties; but only three volumes of the work were published by the Author. The Petyt Transcripts in the Inner Temple Library have furnished the very important Returns of the 24 Ed. I. The original writs were formerly in the Exchequer; and the remarks of Mr. Holmes, by whom they were discovered (v. Chron. Abst.), are worthy of attention. To the foregoing, the Editor has been enabled to add the Writs and Returns entered in the " Letter Books * " in the City Archives, from whence Stowe extracted the names which he has given in his History of London.

V. Writs for levying the expenses of the Knights, Citizens, and Burgesses. — These are enrolled upon the Close Rolls in the same manner as the other writs. They were also made out from schedules and pannels, (p. 156. No. 50), and they were also issued upon dockets or warrants under the Privy Seal (p. 156. No. 48). These circumstances may account for the non-appearance on the rolls, of the Writs de Expensis, during the earlier periods, when such detached documents were not always recorded by the Clerks.

VI. Writs of Military Summons specially addressed to individuals usually considered as the greater or lesser Barons of the Realm. — These are enrolled upon the Close Rolls.

VII. Writs for the performance of Military Service, or relating thereto, addressed to the Sheriff of the County. — These writs were returned in a manner nearly analogous to the Parliamentary Writs, the Sheriff stating in his return the names of the individuals whom he had summoned or distrained to perform Military service or to take the degree of Knighthood. Two only of such original returns have been seen by the Editor in the Tower; but transcripts of many more have been preserved amongst the Cottonian and Harleian Manuscripts; and they are extremely curious and valuable, inasmuch as they furnish the names of those individuals who seem to correspond with the " Minores Barones" of the Magna Carta of King John. There are also returns of an analogous nature, made by inquisitions; two such inquisitions are extant amongst the Harleian Charters (v. p. 267. No. 4 & 5), which were certainly obtained from the Tower.

" persons worldly-wise, honourable, wealthy, potent soever, that not only themselves but their very names, families, and posterities, are " all subject to mortality, because not only the persons, but houses, issues, yea the very names of sundry of the forcited Knights of " Shires, though famous in their generations, are long since totally extinguished and forgotten, when as others of them yet survive, " and retain their antient honor, splendor, love, and popularity in their Countryes, or in some other Counties to which they have been " transplanted. ..... 7. It should excite our whole English nation to blesse God for preserving our Parliaments, and a per- " petual succession of wise, discreet, honourable, potent persons and patriots of their Country from age to age, to serve not only as " Peers, but Knights, Citizens, Burgesses, in all successive Parliaments, to defend, preserve, the just rights and prerogatives of our " Kings and Kingdoms, enact good laws, redresse all publique grievances, protect the antient rights, franchises, liberties, properties " of the subject against all injurious violations, and bring the greatest delinquents to condign punishments, when above the reach of " any other inferior judicatories. 8. It fully verifieth that observation of Solomon, Eccles. i. 4. One generation (of Parliament " members as well as other persons) passeth away and another generation cometh; which should instruct all Parliament members," &c. &c. —(Brevia Parliamentaria Rediviva, 138—141.)

* So called because they are distinguished by the letters of the alphabet, from A to G, inclusive.

VIII. Commissions of Array and other instruments relating to the Military levies. — It being frequently difficult to distinguish between the service due by reason of tenure and the service which was performed under the general obligation of allegiance, it has been judged expedient to unite the principal documents explaining the antient military policy of the realm.

IX. Records affording evidence of the names of the individuals who actually attended or deliberated in Parliaments or Councils.— The judgments and resolutions of Parliament, &c. are usually expressed in general terms. In some instruments, however, the individuals who attended or concurred in legislative, political, or judicial proceedings, are specifically named.

X. Records affording evidence of the actual performance of Military Service. — The Rolls of Marshalsey are the most important of this class. Upon this roll the service was recorded; and if a question arose respecting the due performance thereof, the entry on the roll was pleaded in discharge of the claim of the Crown. Such a roll was made up on every muster of the King's Host; but very few have escaped the general wreck.

The documents comprehended under the foregoing ten sections constitute the body of the collection; those considered as forming the Appendixes are of a more miscellaneous description, such documents having been selected as explain particular facts and proceedings, or which tend to elucidate the main points of enquiry within the purview of the collection: the latter may be thus enumerated —

1. Records shewing the rank and condition of the individuals composing the Parliament. — These are chiefly the commissions by which the royal authority was delegated for the conservancy of the peace, the execution of statutes, &c.; and it is important to remark how very generally the members of Parliament were selected for the discharge of such duties.

2. Records relating to elections of Coroners, Verdurers, &c. which took place in the County Court; and other documents shewing the constitution of that assembly, and elucidating the history of the elective franchise.*

3. Records relating to the Customs and Constitution of Boroughs.*— Some few Custumals and other documents of this description have been obtained; and it is hoped that the collection may be enlarged when the officers, having the custody of corporate archives, are aware how much historical information may be conceded, without in the slightest degree compromising the rights and privileges of their corporations.

In order to render the work more accessible to the reader, it has been accompanied by a Chronological Abstract of the Documents, with Historical Notes — A Calendar of the Writs of Election and the Returns thereof — and an Alphabetical Digest of the Facts relating to Persons. — In consequence of the great bulk of this volume, the Digests of Places and of Principal Matters have not been appended hereto, but will be given on a future occasion.

The collection is as complete as it has been possible to make it, with the powers and means which have been afforded to the Editor; he has employed all the original records which have been produced or rendered accessible to him; nor have any been omitted of which he has knowledge, or which he has been enabled to obtain. In some cases it has been necessary to have recourse to transcripts (as before alluded to), and which are noticed in the Chronological Abstract. All the printed sheets have been carefully collated by the Editor with the sources (whether original record or transcript) from whence they are taken, and they imitate or denote the peculiarities of the manuscript as closely as can be effected by typography.

(1) The day of the demise of Hen. III., which took place on the feast of St. Edmund the Archbishop and Confessor, Wednesday 16 Nov. 1272, has usually been considered, in conformity to modern usage, as the day of the accession of his son and successor. It appears however, that, agreeably to the antient constitution, the years of the reign of Ed. I. were reckoned from the day of the recognition. This ceremony was performed on Sunday next after the feast of St. Edmund the Confessor, that is to say, Sunday 20 November, being also the feast of St. Edmund the King and Martyr: on that day Hen. III. was buried in Westminster Abbey, and the "Proceres" took the oath of allegiance to Edward, before the grave of his father was closed. (Fœdera, N.E. II. 497.) The rolls have been carefully examined, and no instrument is found at the commencement of the roll of any one year, of earlier date than the 20 Nov.; but the best proof of the calculation is afforded by the Letters Patent in which John Balliol acknowledges himself the vassal of Ed. I., and which are dated "apud Norham die Jovis in festo Sancti Eadmundi Regis et Martyris, anno incarnationis Dominicæ millesimo ducentesimo nonagesimo secundo, et "regni ipsius Domini nostri Edwardi vicesimo finiente et vicesimo primo incipiente." (Fœdera, N.E. II. 781.) This instrument shews that the day of accession was reckoned both inclusively and exclusively, a mode of dating which may occasionally be the cause of error: other difficulties arise from the variable practices adopted by the chroniclers, who sometimes reckon the whole of the calendar year as belonging to the year of the King in which it begins. The commencement of the calendar year is also very uncertain. Some writers reckon from Christmas; others from the Kalends of January; others from Lady Day; others from Easter; and others from Michaelmas. Little reliance can be placed upon the marginal dates, either of the manuscripts, or of the printed editions — and, not unfrequently, an erroneous marginal date has been transferred into the text; thus occasioning additional confusion.

(2) No traces can be found of any such grant in 1 Ed. I.; it is therefore probable that the writ refers to the Twentieth granted 54 H. III. (Rot. Cl. 54 H. III. m. 11.)

(3) London is here, as in many other instances, employed for Westminster. The "General Parliament," noticed in the writ, is evidently the Parliament in which the Statute of Westminster the First was enacted — Ces sunt les Establisementz le Rey Edward le fiz le Rey Henry fetz a Weymoster a son premer Parlement General apres son coronement apres la Cluse Paske l'an de son regne tierz, par le conseil et par le assentement des Erceveskes Eveskes Abbes Priurs Contes Barons et la Communaute de la terre illokes somons. By Wikes, it is called a "solemn Parliament," and his narrative may be compared with the preamble of the Statute — In quindena Paschatis factum est famosum et solemne Parliamentum apud Westmonasterium, congregatis ibidem totius regni majoribus, tam secularibus quam personis ecclesiasticis; in quo, tanquam in primo Parliamento suo, Dominus Rex cupiens, ut decuit, populo complacere, et leges languidas, quæ per predecessorum suorum impotentiam, seu per regni turbationem, imo etiam per abusionem male utentium, diutissime dormitaverant, excitare, et in statum debitum revocare, fidelium et jurisperitorum regni sui cooperante consilio, nova quædam statuta, non solum juri consona, verum etiam toti Regno pernecessaria, compilavit, et publice divulgata posteris memoriter observanda contradidit, quo corda plebeiæ multitudinis inæstimabili sibi dilectionis sinceritate conjunxit. (Wikes, p. 102.)

(4) This ordinance is the foundation of the "Great Customs" which, towards the close of the reign of Ed. I., after enhanced customs had been imposed upon wools, &c., ceased to be called "New Customs," and then took the name of Antiqua Custuma. (Hale, on the Customs, part 3, cap. 6.)

(1) Granted in a Parliament, which, according to the Annals of Waverley, was held on or about the feast of St. Luke the Evangelist, 18 Oct. (Ann. Wav. p. 230.) Wikes, who is more circumstantial in his narrative, states, that it was convened on the Quinzaine of St. Michael, 13 Oct. — In quindena Sancti Michaelis convocatis generaliter apud Westmonasterium totius regni Magnatibus, habitoque cum ipsis diffusiore tractatu, Dominus Rex, voluntarie vel invite, laicos et clericos universos et singulos totius Regni sui, prudenter induxit, quod de omnibus bonis suis temporalibus partem sibi quintam decimam concesserunt. (2) Chester was included by anticipation, as appears from the next instrument. When the expression of "All the Counties of England" is employed, the County or Earldom of Chester and the Bishoprick of Durham must be considered as excluded, unless specially noticed.

(1) When proof was to be made of service done in the King's army, such proof was given, either by the testimony of the Commander in chief, or of the Constable or Marshal, or their Lieutenants, or by the rolls of the Marshalsey of the army. (Maddox, Exchequer, p. 457.) Such is the present roll. It appears to have been first prepared with the names of the principal tenants in Capite, leaving blanks for their acknowledgments and proffers; which blanks, on the day of muster, were filled up as occasion required. Prefixed to this roll is a schedule containing the names of the persons to whom writs of Military summons were addressed; but it did not appear necessary to print this schedule, as it agrees exactly with the entries of writs on the Close Roll.

(2) Ingrossed on a schedule tacked to the roll, and written in a hasty and faulty hand.

(3) These two volumes contain various transcripts, apparently made from the original records, of various documents, principally relating to Military Services and Tenures. As the two sets of transcripts do not seem to have been copied from each other, but derived from a common source, the text has been formed by a comparison of both, and thus some clerical errors have been corrected. Other readings, probably erroneous, have been retained, because the agreement of the transcripts, rendered any correction uncertain and conjectural.

(4) It is probable that this Council was held during the sitting of the Parliament at Gloucester, in which the statute so entitled was made — "L'an de "Grace MCCLXXVIII e del regne le Rey Edward fiz le Rey Henry sisme a Gloucester le mois de Aust, purveaunt mesme le Rei, par le amendement de son "reaume ..... apelez les plus descrez de son regne ausi bien des greindres cum des meindres." According to Trivetus, this Parliament began on the Octave of St. John the Baptist; Hemingford places it on the Quinzaine — Rex, Parliamentum tenuit Gloverniæ in Octava Sancti Johannis Baptistæ, in quo edita sunt statuta quæ de Glovernia appellantur. (Triveti Annales, p. 252.) Anno Domini MCCLXXVIII in quindena Sancti Johannis Baptistæ, tenuit Rex Parliamentum suum apud Gloucestriam, fecitque Statuta quæ dicuntur statuta Gloucestriæ, continencia xv capitula. (1) The attack of the Castle of Hawardin, took place on Palm Sunday, 22 March. Rogerus de Clifford, who is stated to have been surprised in his bed, was severely wounded, and carried into Wales, where he died. This was the first act of rebellion committed by David; whose treachery is described by Trivetus, in language so nearly resembling this recital and the recital in the summons of the Parliament of Shrewsbury (p. 15, No. 20, &c.), as to render it probable that he adopted the expressions contained in these instruments. According to Trivetus and Wikes, Edward received the intelligence whilst he was celebrating the feast of Easter at Devizes; but the teste of the commission shews that he was at Stanley when he began to take his measures for opposing the enemy: he also despatched a small body of troops, probably the levies mentioned in the commission, who were sufficient to keep the Welch in check, until a more powerful force could be sent against them. The King and his army are stated by Hemingford to have begun their march at Whitsuntide. Wikes differs in the details of his narrative; he says that the King, having assembled his "Proceres," summoned a Parliament at Worcester, on the feast of St. John the Baptist, and in which it was resolved that all the "Magnates" of the kingdom should meet the King, with horses and arms, on the feast of St. Peter ad Vincula, on the borders of Wales. As this refers to the muster directed by the writs of the 20 and 24 May, and tested at Worcester and at Hartlebury, the date assigned to the so called "Parliament" must be erroneous; the assembly designated by this name being probably the muster or convention of the Military tenants, held at Worcester on Whitsunday, 17 May, pursuant to the writ of the 6 April. Edward continued at Rhuddlan until the beginning of November. On the feast of St. Leonard the Confessor, 6 Nov., the English forces were defeated by the Welch, at the ford of the Menai. The Gascon crossbow men, mentioned in the precept (p. 224, No. 4), were in this action, but are noticed rather in contemptuous terms. Towards the end of the month of December Lewelin was slain. — "Tunc dictus David, Dominica Palmarum, cum multitudine armatorum, Rogerum de Clifford, Baronem Domini Regis in Marchia, in lecto suo cepit: Fulconem Trigald, cognatum ipsius Rogeri, et alios de ejus familia occidit; et ipsum Rogerum, graviter vulneratum, captivum abduxit." (Chron. de Dunstaple, p. 471.) "Circa festum Annuntiationis Lewelinus, prævaricator pacis initæ inter ipsum et Regem Angliæ, instigante David fratre suo, cœpit oppugnare castra de Flint et Rothelan, et vicinas depopulare provincias; quo audito, Rex qui tunc apud Devisas festa Paschalia celebravit, quosdam de suis, licet paucos, præmisit ad partes illas, qui miseras Wallensium turmas repellerent, castra defenderent, quousque Rex posset sibi consultius providere; tandem convocatis Regni sui Proceribus, statuit Parliamentum suum apud Wigorniam in festo Nativitatis Sancti Johannis Baptistæ, ibique provisum est quod omnes regni Magnates occurrerent Regi cum equis et armis die Sancti Petri ad Vincula, circa fines Walliæ." (Wikes, p. 110.) "David, germanus Principis Walliæ, immemor beneficiorum Regis Angliæ, qui eum promoverat et contra fratrem persequentem protexerat, ad insurgendum contra Regem, Walliam excitavit; utque principem nobilesque Wallensium ad seditionem facilius inclinaret, ipse primus facinus aggreditur, Rogerumque de Clifford, Militem nobilem et famosum nihil talem suspicantem, proditiose in castro suo de Hawardin Dominica in ramis Palmarum cepit." (Triveti Annales, p. 255.)

(1) In this year, it is stated, in the Chronicle of Dunstaple, the King demanded an aid from persons of religion, and of all the merchants of the kingdom; but he asked for this benevolence only by way of loan. These expressions should be noticed, because they shew that where the more antient historians state that an aid was demanded, it does not necessarily follow that such demand was made in any general assembly. On this occasion the priory granted forty shillings, the township fifteen pounds ten shillings; but in addition to this corporate loan, one individual contributed twenty pounds, and another ten marks: "Eodem anno (1282), Dominus Rex pro guerra sua quam habuit in Wallia, petiit auxilium à viris religiosis et ab omnibus mercatoribus regni sui. Gratiam illam tantummodo nomine mutui postulavit: et tunc habuit à nobis quadraginta solidos; à villata quindecim libras decem solidos; à Johanne Duraunt viginti libras; à Stephano Aungew decem marcas." (1) These two rolls differ essentially in arrangement as well as in minor particulars; and it has therefore been judged expedient to print them both, for the sake of comparison. At page 232, a curious particularity may be observed; it is the employment of an Arabic cypher. No other instance of the use of Arabic numerals on a record can be adduced. Both rolls are written cursorily, and exhibit many marks of haste.

(1) The Counties thus divided according to the Provinces of York and Canterbury, are afterwards denominated the Counties North and South of Trent.

(2) It was probably in this convocation that the King demanded a tenth of the ecclesiastical revenues for three years; a request which was unanimously denied by the "Procurators of the Clergy:" an expression from which it may, perhaps, be inferred, that the Bishops would have assented: — "(1283) Eisdem anno et tempore, nomine Domini Regis petita est à clero decima de omnibus proventibus ecclesiasticis per triennium; similiter in subsidium guerræ contra Walliam. Archiepiscopus Cantuariensis habuit super hoc tractatum Londoniæ, cum co-episcopis suis, Prælatis omnibus, atque Clero. Ubi à procuratoribus totius cleri fuit manifeste contributioni hujusmodi contradictum." (Chron. de Dunstaple, p. 477.)

(1) These documents are entered on the roll beneath the Commission of the 1st Feb., and are tested "ut supra." Instruments tested in this manner are frequently misplaced; and in this instance it is evident that the first document (11, 7) must have been issued before the Commission.

(2) A register of the Abbey of Bury, to which the following title has been given by Sir Simon Dewes, its former owner: — "Registrum KEMPE, olim ad Abbathiam Sancti Edmundi in agro Suffolciensi pertinens."

(3) This subsidy is described by Trivet and Hemingford as a thirtieth part of the goods of the "people," or "common people," and a twentieth part of the goods of the clergy: — Eodem anno durante guerra Walliæ, dabatur Regi tricesima à communi populo et vicesima à clero, auxilii nomine. (Hem. p. 13.) Concessa est hoc anno Regi in guerræ suæ subsidium à populo tricesima, et à clero vicesima pars bonorum. (Chron. Triveti, p. 260.) According to the Chronicle of Dunstable, the taxation took place after Easter, and included the goods of all persons possessing above the value of half a mark. The taxation was made by twelve jurors of the visne: and afterwards all persons of religion and traders, who had lent money to the King, were excused by special writs. — 1283. "Eodem anno, statim post Pascha, bona omnium eorum, qui habebant ultra dimidiam marcam in catallis, per duodecim juratos de visneto suo taxabantur, pro tricesima Domino Regi concessa. Et tunc bona nostra extra Burgum, cum aliis, sunt taxata: et bona infra curiam per Burgenses; at tamen moderate. Postea taxatio prædicta, revocata fuit per breve domini Regis, quoad viros religiosos et quoad mercatores, qui alias dominum Regem nomine mutui adjuvarunt ad guerram contra Wallenses." (Chron. de Dunstaple, p. 477.) These particulars are important; but they do not altogether agree with the documents, all of which speak of the Thirtieth granted by the Clergy. No entries relating to this grant are found upon any of the rolls composing the regular series of rolls of Chancery in the Tower. Amongst the miscellaneous rolls, there is one, however, entitled "Rotulus de Tricesima," and from which the instruments so quoted have been extracted. The taxation of the roll of the Borough of Ipswich has been discovered amongst the Records in the Chapter House. This very curious document has been prepared for the press, and would have been included in the present volume if space could have been found for it. The Register of Bury also contains many particulars relating to the taxation, and the manner of taking the valuation upon which it was effected.

(1) Trinity Sunday, as may be seen by reference to the Calendar, fell on the twenty-eighth of May. But in the writs of the 7th November, 30 Ed. I. (pp. 132, 133. No. 64.) the Grant is stated to have been made on the first of June. Great obscurity attends the history of the Parliaments convened in the course of this year. (See Lords Report, pp. 195, 201.) The statute of Westminster the third, or "Quia Emptores," was enacted in the Parliament "apud Westm' post Pasch. anno regni sui decimo octavo vid' in quindena Sancti Johannis Baptistæ." In this year the series of Parliament Rolls now extant begins, their titles being the following: "Placita coram ipso Domino Rege et ejus consilio ad Parliamenta sua post festum Sancti Hillarii et etiam post Pascha Anno xviii°." — "Placita de Parliamento apud Clypston a die Sancti Michaelis in unum mensem Anno xviii°." The Parliamentary records hitherto published do not contain any evidence respecting the transactions which appear to have excited most attention amongst the contemporary historians. Proclamation was made that all who had any complaints against the King's Justiciars, Ministers, or Bailiffs, of injuries done to the people whilst he was out of the kingdom, should prefer them in person before the Parliament which had been summoned to meet at London, on the feast of St. Hilary. In consequence of this proceeding, it appears that the truth of the allegations of the complainants was ascertained in the usual manner; viz. by an inquest of twelve men; and by this inquest Thomas de Weyland, the Chief Justice of the Common Bench, was found guilty of having caused a murder to be committed by one of his Squires, and of having harboured the murderers. Sir Thomas, who was in Subdeacon's orders, and who had also received Knighthood, escaped from the officers by whom he was arrested, and escaped to the Monastery of the Minor Friars at St. Edmunds, where he was allowed to take the habit of the order. After forty days had elapsed, he refused to quit his sanctuary; upon which the "Laity," probably the Sheriff and his posse, besieged the Convent, and entirely prevented the introduction of any kind of victual. The Friars, yielding to hunger and thirst, abandoned their house, all except three or four "veterans," who remained with Weyland. The latter, finding that his frock would not protect him, "maxime cum cibaria non haberet," reclothed himself in his secular garb, and surrendered himself to Robert Malet, by whom he was lodged in the Tower of London. Being brought before the Council, and arraigned concerning the "treasons and felonies which he had committed against the King and the kingdom," he was allowed his choice ... either to abide the judgment of the Court, or to be adjudged to perpetual imprisonment, or to abjure the King's dominions for evermore. He submitted to the last of these hard conditions; and the port of Dover having been assigned to him, he journeyed thither barefooted, bareheaded, and carrying the cross in his hands, and crossed the sea; and all his lands, and all his goods and chattels, were seized by the King. "And this Thomas," continues the Monk of Dunstable, with great exultation, "gave for law, that if any malefactor escaped from the hands of those who had him in custody, he should be punished as a prison breaker. Moreover he gave for law, that the secular arm should withhold food from every malefactor flying to the Church for protection, if after forty days elapsed he should refuse to abjure the kingdom, according to the law — Et postea juxta illud Catonis; Patere legem quam ipse tuleris, ipsemet secundum ipsas leges graviter est punitus." All the other Justices of the lower Bench, the Chief Justice of the upper Bench, the Clerk or Master of the Rolls, and many others, were thrown into the dungeons of the Tower, from whence they were released upon payment of very large fines. According to a document, intitled "Summa pecuniæ de

Justiciariis Regis per Regem extorta," (Bib. Cott. Claud. E. VIII. p. 206.) Radulphus de Hengham, Chief Justice of the "upper Bench," paid eight thousand pounds; Johannes de Lovetot, three thousand pounds; Willielmus de Brumpton, six thousand pounds; Rogerus de Leycestre, one thousand marks; (the three last were the fellows of Thomas de Weyland); Solomon de Roff, Chief Justice in Eyre, four thousand marks; Richard de Boylond, four thousand marks; Thomas de Sodintone, two thousand marks; Robert de Preston, one thousand marks; all Justices in Eyre; Robertus de Litlebury, Clerk of the Rolls, "qui minimus censebatur," one thousand marks; Willielmus de Saham, Justice in Eyre, though entirely innocent, "in quo dolus seu fraus non est inventus," paid three thousand marks, to conciliate the King. The heaviest punishment was inflicted upon Adam de Stratton, Baron of the Exchequer, who was accused or convicted of murder, treason, and sorcery, and, after a long imprisonment in the Tower, was deprived of all his Lay fee, fined thirty-four thousand marks, and despoiled of jewels without number, which were found in his possession. The Parliament in which these transactions took place, is stated in the MS. to have continued from the Morrow of the Circumcision to Sunday next after the feast of St. Valentine. The amerciaments imposed upon the Justices are stated with some variations by the different authorities. (See also Stowe's Chronicle, p. 204.) Weyland's adventures are given from the Chronicle of Dunstaple; and the writer of the latter had a better opportunity of becoming acquainted with the facts than was usually the case with the Monastic Chroniclers, inasmuch as the Prior was present, he having preferred a complaint before the King's Council against Ricardus de Boyland. The tradition respecting the application of the fine imposed upon Hengham is well known. These details having been given on account of the very singular illustrations which they afford of the character and jurisprudence of the age. (Chron. de Dunstaple, p. 575, 579. — Wikes, p. 118, 120. — Annales Waverlienses, p. 241. — Triveti Annales, p. 266.)

(1) The Bull of Pope Nicholas, apparently in reply to the King's letter which accompanied this letter of the Earls and Barons, is dated at Orvieto 15 Kal. Oct. (Fœdera, N. E. vol. i. p. 740.) See Lords Report, 201.

(2) This Commission is not enrolled on any of the Rolls of Chancery, nor do they contain any entries whatever relating to this Grant. It is possible that the passage in Wikes may relate to it, in which he says, that about Michaelmas "pessimis et protervis Domini Regis consiliariis persuadentibus, ipsumque Regem ad hoc pertinaciter inducentibus, exiit edictum a Rege toto regno perniciosum nimis et deplorabile, viz. ut universi regnicolæ, tam clerici quam laici, seculares pariter et religiosi, quintamdecimam partem omnium bonorum suorum secularium mobilium solverent fisco regio, congerendam sub intolerabili taxatione, graviori more quidem quam aliquis predecessorum suorum retroactis temporibus consueverat æstimare; gemuitque populus inconsolabiliter tantalibet afflictione contritus." (p. 121.) But Trivetus states, that the grant of the Fifteenth was made as a consideration for the expulsion of the Jews, a measure determined in the Easter Parliament at Westminster — "Tenuit hoc anno Rex Parliamentum Londoniis in quo edita sunt statuta quæ dicuntur Westmonasterii tertia; in quo etiam pro expulsione Judeorum concessa est Regi à populo quinta decima pars bonorum." (Trivetus, p. 257.) According to Hemingford, the grant made by the Clergy was a Tenth — "Anno Domini M.CC.XC° tenuit Rex Parliamentum suum Londoniis post Pascham, ubi fecit statuta Westmonasterii tercia et explanacionem super statutum, Quo Waranto, in quo quidem Parliamento ..... ordinatum est per Regem et secretum Consilium quod certo die, infra horam primam et tertiam, omnes Judæi in singulis civitatibus caperentur et deinde expellerentur à terra ..... Pro hac autem expulsione Judæorum à terra, dedit communis populus Regi xv. denarium et totus clerus unam decimam." (Hemingford, p. 21.)

(3) Balliol and Bruce are amongst the Barons to whom the writs are directed. The nobility and clergy of Scotland had been summoned to Norham in the quinzaine of Easter, 6 May; the first session of the assembly was held on the 10th of May. On the 2d June a meeting was held at Upsetelington "in the green field beneath the sky," when eight of the competitors for the Scottish Crown acknowledged Edward as Lord Paramount of Scotland. On the 3d of June (being the day of the return of the military writs) the meeting was held in the presence of Edward himself, and the competitors sealed the instrument by which they became bound to submit to his award. (1) Edmund Earl of Cornwall delivered seizin of Acquitain to the King of France, by an instrument dated at Candlemas, on the Morrow of the Purification, 2 Feb. 1294, pursuant to the treaty by which it was stipulated that he should hold the Duchy for forty days, as a satisfaction for an alledged violation of his homage due to the French Crown. When the term elapsed, Philip refused to fulfil the conditions, asserting, as it is stated by Hemingford, that he could not revoke the judgment of his twelve Peers without their common consent — "Quadraginta diebus elapsis, dum super eodem negotio rogaretur per dominum Edmundum, confestim respondit, ordinationem curiæ suæ et judicata per duodecim Pares, absque eorundem communi consilio se revocare non posse, mutatoque vultu quasi dedignando recessit." (Hemingford, p. 43.) Edmund then withdrew himself secretly from the court of France, and repaired as quickly as he could to England, and informed the King and his Council of the events which had taken place. A "Parliament" was therefore summoned at London, about Whitsuntide (Whitsunday fell on the 6th June), at which John Balliol, King of Scots, appeared; and by advice of the Prelates and Peers it was agreed, that the territories thus fraudulently seized by the King of France should be recovered again by the sword; and ambassadors were despatched on the King's behalf, renouncing his homage to the crown of France. There are no writs extant for the convention of this so called Parliament, which seems to have been only a great council of military tenants — "Rex autem, licet animo consternatus ab auditis, tamen fratre blande confortavit, moxque vocatis Magnatibus suis cum Johanne Rege Scottorum, tenuit Parliamentum suum Londoniis, et in eorum præsencia, toto processu recitato, concilium eorum petiit et juvamen ..... At illi unanimiter responderunt ei, dicentes, se eum velle sequi in vitam et in mortem. Rege igitur Scottorum qui aderat, cum cæteris magnatibus auxilium promittente, gratias Deo et ipsis egit, et cum multis

(1) With respect to the persons summoned by these writs to attend in person, Lord Hailes observes, that it is probable that they all held lands in England. (Annals of Scotland, vol. i. p. 283.)

(2) Whilst Edward was preparing to cross the seas, the Welch suddenly rebelled. According to Hemingford, their actual rising took place on Michaelmas Day; but the King had probably earlier notice of their intended insurrection. He immediately abandoned his Gascon expedition, and marched against the insurgents; recalling at the same time all the forces assembled at Portsmouth, which were marched into Wales, where they continued till the following Lent — "Circa festum Sancti Michaëlis, Wallenses rebellare cœperunt. Convenerant enim et statuerant inter se quod in ipso die Sancti Michaëlis omnes unanimiter insurgerent contra Regem; feceruntque sic, et eodem die, quasi ex improviso, ceperunt castella multa ..... Quod cum audisset Rex, mox congregato exercitu, declinavit ibidem, missisque literis ad dominum Edmundum fratrem suum et Comitem Lincolniensem (qui tunc temporis in portu de Portesmue cum multis millibus armatorum parati fuerunt in Vasconiam transfretare) ut ad eum in Walliam cum omni festinatione redirent, qui cum audissent talia, properabant ad eum, et manserunt ibidem usque fere medium quadragesimæ." (Hemingford, p. 55, 56.) Et Edwardus Rex Angliæ, interim congregato exercitu magno Anglorum et aliorum apud Portesmuthe, proposuit transfretare, ut occurreret conductitio exercitui prædictorum Regum et Principum diversorum, et hostes suos per Dei gratiam debellare. Cumque per octo septimanas et amplius, apud Portesmue moram traheret, ventum habuit et aërem sic contrarium, quod salvo non potuit transfretare. Wallenses interim, audito quod Rex Angliæ aditurus esset partes transmarinas, nec credentes eum posse reverti; ab homagio et servitio domini Regis unanimiter discesserunt, et præpositos sibi per dominum Regem Anglos, immisericorditer occiderunt; ad secura loca in Snowdowne et Anglesheye se et sua transferentes; loca ipsa armis ad modum Wallensium et victualibus munientes. Et Edwardus, Rex Angliæ, cognita rebellione Wallensium, à suo passagio contra Regem Franciæ supersedit. (Chron. de Dunstaple, p. 621, 622.)

(3) Neither these nor the preceding writs of summons were obeyed. The Scottish King and his "Magnates" returned various "frivolous answers," and eluded the demands of Edward, whilst they were covertly endeavouring to throw off the English yoke, an enterprise to which they were stimulated as well by the discontents in Wales as by the expected diversion of Edward's forces to Gascony; and, holding a Parliament at Scone, they negotiated a secret alliance with the French King — "Scoti, homines inquieti, leves et instabiles, subsequenti modo contra Regem Angliæ rebellare cœperunt credentes excutere jugum debitæ servitutis. Inprimis Regi suo simplici suggesserunt, occasione expensarum alleviandarum, ut omnes Anglicos, quos sumptuosissime retinuerat (ut dicebant) à curia sua removeret, et caute quidem hoc, ne eorum sedicio per Anglicos in primo suo fomite panderetur. Interim, dum Rex noster ad Regem Scotorum literas dirigeret, ut in guerram suam contra Regem Franciæ robur exercitus in parte mitteretur, excusatoria impotenciæ et quasi brevis responsio datur. Multiplicantur iterum preces et precepta, non tantum ad Regem, immo et ad Magnates terræ, et semper responsiones frivolæ querebantur, eo quod conjuraciones eorum validæ nondum complerentur ad votum." (Hem. p. 75.) In the printed text of Hemingford, this paragraph is referred to 1295, but Lord Hailes applies it, and properly, to 1294. It may be remarked, that, according to Walsingham, the defection of the Scots was manifested as early as the Whitsuntide "Parliament," from which John Baliol, by the advice of the Abbot of Melrose, departed secretly, without licence; in consequence of which the King seized all his lands in England — "Illicentiatus clam discessit, tanquam fugitivus, ad magnum dedecus personæ suæ. Ob quam causam Rex Angliæ jussit omnia bona sua mobilia et immobilia quæ habebat in Anglia confiscari. (Walsingham, p. 64.)

(1) The clause in the writ relating to the attendance of the Clergy runs in the following form, and appears to have furnished the precedent for the clause to the same effect in the Parliamentary Writs. "Vobis mandamus in fide et dilectione in quibus nobis tenemini, firmiter injungentes, ut dictis die et loco personaliter intersitis, vocantes prius Decanum et Capitulum ecclesiæ vestræ, Archidiaconos totumque clerum vestræ diocesis, facientesque quod iidem Decanus et Archidiaconi in propriis personis suis, et dictum Capitulum per unum, idemque clerus per duos procuratores idoneos, plenam et sufficientem potestatem ab ipsis Capitulo et Clero habentes, una vobiscum intersint, modis omnibus, tunc ibidem ad tractandum," &c. Hemingford is very minute in his account of the proceedings of this Convocation, which he opens with the following narration: — "Eodem anno vocavit Rex per literas suas Archiepiscopos, Episcopos, Decanos ecclesiarum cathedralium et Archidiaconos, in propriis personis, clerumque uniuscujusque diœceseos per duos procuratores, ut in festo Sancti Mathæi Apostoli coram eo comparerent Londoniis" (p. 52.) The King opened the assembly in person. After stating the necessities of the war in Gascony, he requested both their prayers and their aid: — "Because, my good Lords," he continued, "you see, that the Earls, Barons, and Knights not only contribute their goods, but expose their lives for your defence; and as to you therefore who cannot venture your bodies, it is fitting that you should afford some aid from your purses."——After many debates, the Clergy voted Two Tenths, which did not satisfy the King, who insisted upon half their goods, threatening, in case of non-compliance, to put them out of his protection. At last they granted the moiety so required, accompanying the grant with a prayer for the repeal of the statute of Mortmain, which was eluded by the King. Hemingford then adds, that in the same year, the King had the Tenth Penny from the Communitas of the land, and the Seventh Penny from the Citizens — "Eodem etiam in anno habuit Rex a communitate terræ decimum denarium, et a Civitatibus septimum (p. 55.) This Tenth is evidently the grant mentioned in the Commission of the 12 Nov. (p. 27. No. 4.) The Chronicle of Dunstable represents the grants of the Clergy and Laity as having been made in one Parliament, but this seems to be an error — "Dominus Edwardus, Rex Angliæ, Parliamentum suum tenuit Londoniæ cum magnatibus suis, petens auxilium à populo et à clero contra inimicos regni sui. Et populus concessit ei decimam bonorum suorum omnium, exceptis quibusdam minutis jocalibus. Clerus vero concessit ei medietatem bonorum suorum omnium indistincte, secundum taxationem per Lincolniensem et Wintoniensem Episcopos pro decima Terræ Sanctæ nuper factam; solutione ipsius medietatis per unum annum duratura." (Chron. de Dunstaple, p. 623.) The commission appointing the collectors of the moiety in the Diocese of Canterbury, bears date Sept. 30, and is to be found amongst the records in the office of the King's Remembrancer in the Exchequer. (Brady, vol. iii. p. 39.)

(1) This writ is enrolled as a general form or precedent.

(2) This Parliament was held for the purpose of receiving the Cardinals of Saint Albano and Palestrina, the Legates à latere, who were dispatched by the Pope with a Bull exhorting the King to accept their mediation — "Cumque in adventu Cardinalium nondum esset reversus Rex à Wallia post guerram quam ibi finierat, præcepit Rex ut honorifice tractarentur, Londoniisque moram facerent, usque ad Vincula Beati Petri ipsius Regis adventum præstolantes. Ad quem diem ipse Rex, pacificata Wallia, et omnes Magnates, tam cleri, quam populi, specialiter ad hoc vocati comparentes, ipsos Cardinales honorifice et cum gaudio susceperunt." (Hemingford, p. 63.) The King's reply, proposing a truce, is dated at Westminster, 16 Aug. (Fœdera, N. E. vol. i. p. 824.)

The Archbishop is therefore commanded, "in fide et dilectione," to appear in person at Westminster, on Sunday next after the feast of St. Martin, 13 Nov.; and to forewarn the Prior and Chapter of his Cathedral, and the Archdeacon and Clergy of his Diocese, to appear at the same time and place, the Prior and Archdeacon in person, and the Chapter by one, and the Clergy by two sufficient Procurators; who, with the King, and with the Prelates, "Proceres," and other inhabitants of the realm, were to deliberate upon and ordain in what manner the impending dangers could be obviated, and to "do" what should be then ordained. The writ then commands the Sheriff that he should cause to be elected of his County two Knights, and of every City of the same County two Citizens, and of every Borough two Burgesses, and cause them to come to the King at the same time and place; so that the Knights should have sufficient power for themselves and the "Communitas" of the Shire, and the Citizens and Burgesses for the "Communitates" of their respective Cities and Boroughs, to do what by common council should be ordained in the premises. ..... | 29 30 | 4 |

(1) At the instigation of Thomas de Turberville, who afterwards received the punishment due for his treason, the King of France made several attempts to invade England. A fleet of three hundred vessels being assembled, the enemy first attacked Hythe, where they were defeated with great loss. On the feast of St. Peter ad Vincula, 1 Aug., they landed at Dover, which they burnt in part, and carried off many prisoners; and they repeated their depredations in other parts of the Kingdom. (Hemingford, p. 59. — Chron. Dunst. 642.) The precautions directed by the writs were undoubtedly very necessary; yet it appears, from the Monk of Dunstaple, that the duty of performing watch and ward was considered as burthensome to the people — "Rex autem Angliæ tales insidias volens devitare, omnes portus maris et loca, ubi solent hostes intrare, salvo fecit custodiri, per quod agentes vigilias provinciæ, quam plurimum gravabantur." (Chron. de Dunstaple, p. 642.)

(2) ..... "linguam Anglicanam, si conceptæ iniquitatis proposito detestabili potestas correspondeat, quod Deus avertat, omnino de terra delere proponit." "Language," however, is here used for "nation," a sense in which it is frequently employed in the Latinity of the middle ages.

(3) "Præmunientes Priorem et capitulum ecclesiæ vestræ, Archidiaconum totumque clerum vestræ diœcesis, facientes quod iidem Prior et Archidiaconus in propriis personis suis, et dictum capitulum per unum, idemque clerus per duos procuratores idoneos, plenam et sufficientem potestatem ab ipsis capitulo et clero habentes, una vobiscum intersint modis omnibus tunc ibidem ad tractandum, ordinandum, et faciendum," &c. This clause, usually called the "Præmunientes Clause," continued, without any material alteration, until the accession of Ed. III., but it was not always inserted in the writs; and some Parliaments appear to have been held without the attendance of the inferior clergy. The question whether they had voice in Parliament is discussed by Hody (History of Convocations), and Atterbury (The Rights of our English Convocation), with equal diligence and learning, though with very opposite views.

(4) In the margin of the roll the writ is docketted "de Parliamento tenendo" — in the instrument itself the assembly is denominated as a "Colloquium;" shewing that the expressions were synonymous.

(1) The following memorandum, which is in the hand-writing of the celebrated antiquary, George Holmes, explains the circumstances under which the Petyt transcripts were made: —

"In my searches in the King's Remembrancer's Office in the Exchequer, near twenty years ago, I met with, in a great chest, several broken bundles of "writts and other records, in the reigns of different Kings, huddled up together; and amongst them I found an imperfect bundle of Writs of Summons, with "their returns to a Parliament, to be held at Westm', anno 23 Ed. I., the very first president of that nature hitherto found out by any man that I have heard "of. This discovery being thus made by me, I ordered my clerk to take a copy of those writs and returns, which I have, and after acquainted Mr. Halsted "(then Deputy to Sr Algernoon May, Keeper of the Records at the Tower, and after to Dr Brady) with my discovery, which I believe, upon very good "reasons, Mr Halsted afterwards told the Doctor of.

"From this account two observations may arise: the first is, that Mr. Prynne had not, in all his searches in the Exchequer, met with the bundle, de anno "23 Edw. I.; for if he had, he would undoubtedly have taken notice thereof in his printed book called Brevia Parliamentaria rediviva, as he did of severall "of the like nature afterwards.

"The second is, that that bundle was found amongst the Records in the Exchequer, and not amongst the Records of the Tower, where the generality of "Parliamentary Records are kept; from whence it may be fairely presumed, that the bundle of ye 23 of Edw. 1st, was not the first and onely bundle of that "kind which was lodged in the Exchequer, but that there may be several others of more antient times which remain there undiscovered." (Petyt Collections, vol. 15. p. 112.)

The transcripts, as well as the memorandum, are in the hand-writing of Holmes, and were probably made by him from the copy taken by his clerk. Some errors may be observed. In the return for York (p. 36. n. 13.) Robert Turcock is twice repeated as the Burgess for Pickering, and "Jarval" is twice written for Jarum or Yarum. There are other inaccuracies of the same description, but which are easily corrected by comparison with subsequent returns; most of the names of persons, as well as of places, being of frequent recurrence.

(1) The treaty with France being concluded, the Scots "erexerunt cornua et se ad pugnam paraverunt." (Hemingford, p. 83.) All who refused to join in the insurrection, were ordered to quit the country, and their lands were seized. Amongst others, Robert Bruce forfeited his Lordship of Annandale, which was bestowed upon John Comyn, Earl of Buchan; a transaction carefully recorded by the Canon of Gisburne, inasmuch as the Earl carried off the tithes of the monastery for provisioning the Castle of Lochmaben. — "Inter quos Dominus Robertus de Bruys, filius Roberti quarti, de quo supra meminimus, quia ad diem illum venire contempserat, data est terra sua, scilicet Vallis Anandiæ, Domino Johanni Comyn de Boughan, ut eam in dominio possideret et defenderet tanquam suam; quam cum esset ingressus, mox omnes decimas nostras ejusdem patriæ, ad municionem Castri de Loghmaban absque ullo precio fecit cariari et violenter retinuit." (Hem. p. 83.) Notwithstanding these demonstrations of hostility, the war did not immediately break out. Edward applied again to the Scots for assistance against the French, but he afterwards contented himself with requiring them not to admit his enemies, the French and Flemings, into their ports, and that Berwick, Roxburgh, and Jedburgh should be occupied by English forces until the conclusion of the war with France. Balliol seems to have assented to the proposition; for by letters patent, tested at Westminster, 12 Oct. 23 Ed. I., the Bishop of Carlisle and the Abbot of Newminster were empowered to take possession of the fortresses; and by other letters patent, tested at Westminster, 16 Oct., and reciting that possession had been so given, the King agrees to restore the fortresses at the conclusion of the war. (Rot. Scot. vol. i. p. 21, 22.) These instruments were, however, executed in anticipation of an event which never took place; for, whatever may have been the intentions or the promises of the weak and wavering Balliol, the Scottish Peers refused to assent to the demand; and the English merchants residing at Berwick were plundered, some murdered, and the survivors driven from the town. Edward forthwith cited John Balliol to appear to answer for these trespasses, and, as he disobeyed the summons, his lands were seized; and he and the Scottish Magnates were summoned again to appear at Newcastle-upon-Tyne, on the 1st March, at which time and place the King's army had assembled to the amount of four thousand men at arms and thirty thousand foot soldiers, besides the contingent of the Bishoprick of Durham, and the Welsh and Irish levies, which had not yet arrived; and, as the Scots made default, it was determined to invade the country — "Moxque ex edicto præcepit vocari Regem Scotorum, super auditis hujusmodi, ad diem certum responsurum. Qui cum ad diem non veniret neque mitteret, præcepit Rex, ut omnes terræ suæ quas in Anglia tenuit, saysirentur, quod et factum est. Iterumque Rex communicato cum optimatibus suis consilio, vocavit per edictum ipsum Regem Scociæ Magnatesque suos, ut primo die Marcii apud Novum Castrum super Tynam comparerent, in præmissis responsuri. Congregatoque interim exercitu immenso ad eosdem diem et locum cum suis optimatibus Rex noster potenter accessit. Cumque vocati non venirent neque mitterent, statuit Rex, de consilio suorum, ulterius esse procedendum usque ad confinia terrarum. Ordinato autem exercitu et numerato, inventi sunt armatorum in equis armatis quatuor millia, et peditum electorum triginta millia præter exercitum Dunolmensis Episcopi, qui quingenti erant in equis armatis et mille pedites, et præter Wallenses et Hibernicos, qui nondum venerant; venerunt tamen postea, processeruntque per turmas suas usque ad confinia regionum." (Hemingford, p. 84, 85.) On the 30th March Berwick was taken by Edward, with great slaughter (Hemingford, p. 91 — Trivetus, p. 289.); an event which was followed by the decisive battle of Dunbar, and Balliol's surrender of the Scottish Crown. (Hemingford, p. 96, 99. — Trivetus, p. 288, 293. — Fœdera, N. E. vol. i. p. 841.)

(1) This resolution was opposed on the first day by "Johannes de Dowgate," "Nicholaus Pycot," Mercer, and "Galfridus de Conductu," a Taverner; but these refractory citizens submitted, on the following day, to perform the duty, with horses and arms, &c. in their own proper persons.

(2) In this Parliament the Twelfth Penny was granted by the Laity, and the Eighth by the Cities and Boroughs. A Fifth was demanded from the Clergy, but they refused, pleading that both they and the King would thereby incur the sentence of excommunication for making such a grant contrary to the constitution then lately published by the Pope, forbidding the Clergy to contribute any thing belonging to the Church for the use of a secular prince. The King was not pleased at this reply, and the business was adjourned to another "Parliament" at London, in the beginning of the ensuing month of January — "Dominus Rex Parleamentum suum tenuit apud Sanctum Edmundum, auxilium petens à Laicis et à Clero in bello quod commissurus fuit contra Regem Franciæ pro Vasconia, super quo articulo respectum habuerunt hi et illi usque ad Epiphaniam proximo subsequentem." (Chron. de Dunstaple, p. 651.) "In Crastino Animarum ejusdem anni, tenuit Rex Parliamentum suum apud Sanctum Edmundum, ubi, ad rogatum ipsius, concessus est ei duodecimus denarius à populo, octavus à Civitatibus et Burgis, à Clero quintus. * Responsum est, quod nec ipsi dare vel concedere, nec ipse quicquam accipere posset, nisi uterque eorum sententiam excommunicacionis incurreret in Bulla latam: quod tamen Regem velle non credebant, nec sibi expedire sciebant. Sed non placuit Regi responsum hoc, unde adjornati sunt ad aliud Parliamentum Londoniis, in Crastino Sancti Hilarii, ut interim cum deliberacione consulti melius responderent." (Hemingford, p. 107.) "Rex Angliæ, profectus in Angliam, apud S. Eadmundum Parliamentum tenuit in Crastino Animarum, in quo à Civitatibus et Burgis concessa est Regi octava, à populo vero reliquo duodecima pars bonorum. Clerus ob constitutionem Bonifacii Papæ hoc anno editam, quæ prohibit sub pœna excommunicationis, ne talliæ vel exactiones à Clero per sæculares principes quocumque modo exigantur, vel eis solvantur de rebus ecclesiæ, Regi pro guerra petenti subsidium denegavit. Rex autem negotium in aliud Parliamentum tenendum Londoniis in Crastino S. Hilarii distulit." (Trivetus, p. 295, 6.)

(1) The title of Earl of Pembroke is not given to Eymerus de Valence in any of the writs of summons of the reign of Edward I.; though he is so called by the chroniclers, and in the records his name is usually placed amongst the Earls.

(2) In consequence of the contumacy of the Clergy, none were summoned to this Parliament; but the King met with equal opposition from the Laity. When he proposed to the Magnates that they should cross the seas into Gascony, they severally excused themselves. He threatened to seize their lands, and bestow them upon others who would be more obedient. Great offence was taken by the nobility in consequence of this expression. The Earls of Gloucester and Norfolk alledged that they were ready to perform their respective offices of Constable and Earl Marshal if the King led forth his host in person. The request to the Earl of Norfolk being repeated, he persisted in his refusal: thereupon the King, "as is said," exclaimed with an oath, "Earl, thou shalt go or hang." The Earl replied, "By the same oath, O King, I will neither go nor hang;" and without waiting for licence he departed, and the assembly was dissolved. Many "Magnates" joined the discontented Earls, whose forces increased to upwards of one thousand five hundred men at arms. The King, though in great alarm, did not manifest his apprehensions; but the Earls and their followers retired to their estates, and prevented the King's officers from making any of the extraordinary or illegal levies, of which the chief was the Maltolte, being a tax of forty shillings on each sack of wool, imposed by the King's authority: — "In festo Sancti Mathiæ Apostoli, convocatis optimatibus regni absque clero, tenuit Rex Parliamentum suum apud Saresbire, ubi rogavit quosdam Magnatorum, ut in Vasconiam transfretarent, et cœperunt singuli se excusare. Indignatusque Rex, comminabatur quibusdam eorum, vel quod irent, vel quod terras eorum daret aliis qui ire vellent. Et in hoc verbo scandalizati sunt multi, et scisma cœpit oriri inter eos. Comes eciam Herefordensis et Comes Marescallus excusaverunt se, dicentes quod officia sua quæ sibi jure hæreditario competebant, facerent libenter eundo cum ipso Rege. Iteratoque prece rogatus est Comes Marescallus ut iret, et ait; Libenter tecum vadam, ô Rex, præcedendo faciem tuam in acie prima, sicut mihi competit hereditario jure. Et Rex, Eciam sine me ibis cum aliis. At ille, Non teneor, nec est meæ voluntatis, ô Rex, sine te iter arripere. Et iratus Rex prorupit in hæc verba, ut dicitur: Per Deum, Comes, aut ibis aut pendebis. Et ille, Per idem juramentum, ô Rex, nec ibo nec pendebo; et licencia non accepta, recessit, dissolutumque est consilium quoad diem hanc." (Hemingford, p. 112.) "Hoc anno auxit Rex tributum de lanis, accipiens de quolibet sacco quadraginta solidos, cum prius ultra marcam dimidiam non daretur. In festo S. Matthiæ Rex quibusdam terræ majoribus apud Saresberiam vocatis ad Concilium, rogavit eos ut eorum aliqui in Vasconiam transfretarent, quibus renuentibus, cœpit inter Regem et suos discordia pullulare." (Trivetus, p. 298.)

(3) When the Clergy reassembled, pursuant to the adjournment of the Parliament of Bury, they deliberated whether they could comply with the King's demands: they were divided into four houses — Bishops, and their proxies — Deans of Cathedrals and Archdeacons — Abbots, and other heads of the regular Clergy — Procurators of the parochial Clergy; — and, after many discussions, it was determined that no grant could be made. The Archbishop of Canterbury declared the resolution of the Convocation to the King's commissioners (Hemingford, p. 108. — Chron. de Dunstaple, p. 652.) The King became extremely indignant, and put the whole body of the Clergy out of the protection, ordering at the same time that their lands should be seized; and the Chief Justice of the King's Bench gave notice in open court, that no redress was henceforth to be afforded to the Clergy, even for the most atrocious offences which might be committed against them, whilst they were to answer to every one: — "Vos Domini attornati Archiepiscoporum, Episcoporum, Abbatum, et Priorum, cæterarumque personarum omnium ex Clero, nunciate Dominis vestris et dicite, quod de cætero in curia Domini Regis nulla fiet eis justicia de quacunque re, eciam si illata fuerit eis injuria atrocissima. Justicia tamen de eis fiet omnibus conquerentibus et eam habere volentibus." (Hemingford, p. 108.) Nor was this an empty threat; for such of the Clergy as refused to make fine with the King, according to the commission, were exposed to many and great affronts and injuries: — "Qui etiam finem non fecerant exleges et læsæ majestatis rei censebantur, et de injuria, damno, vel convicio personali vel prædiali sibi factis, et de ablato sibi equo à laico quod tunc sæpe contigit, remedium seu breve à regia curia negabatur, et facti sunt clerici quasi opprobrium hominum et abjectio plebis." (Chron. de Dunstaple, p. 653.) By these vexations the opposition of the Clergy was much broken. The Archbishop elect of York, and very many others, compounded, and obtained the King's protection. In Lent another Convocation was held, and the Clergy not being supported, as they expected, by the Pope, almost all made fine with the King. (Chron. de Dunstaple, p. 654, 655.) "In Parliamento Londoniensi post festum Sancti Hilarii, Clero in denegatione subsidii persistente, Rex ipsum à sua protectione exclusit; pro qua tamen redimenda multi per se, multi vero per mediatores, Regi bonorum suorum dederunt postea quintam partem. Rex Archiepiscopum in hac parte rigidiorem comperiens, terras ejus omnes seisivit, et de bonis ejusdem, debita, in rotulis Scaccarii inventa, præcepit cum celeritate levari." (Trivetus, p. 297.) The recognizances for securing the payment of the fines, and which are extremely curious, are published by Prynne (Records, vol. iii. p. 709.), who quotes them as then existing in the bundles of miscellaneous Writs in the Tower. The protections granted pursuant to these fines are enrolled on the Patent Roll. (25 Ed. I. p. 2. m. 13, &c.) Many of the secular clergy, who published the Pope's Bull, were arrested and committed to prison by the Commissioners, and afterwards let out upon bail. (Cl. 25 Ed. I. m. 18.)

(1) The mandatory clause of this writ omits the expressions "in fide et homagio," or "in fide et dilectione," usually employed in similar instruments; and it is also remarkable as being grounded on the writs of general summons.

(2) According to Hemingford, all who owed Military Service, and all others who held twenty pounds of land, were summoned to be at London on the feast of St. Peter ad Vincula, with horses and arms, ready to cross the seas. But it appears, from the King's own statement, that they assembled before the feast of St. James (25 July). In this Parliament, as it is called, the Archbishop of Canterbury was received into favour, and Edward the King's Son was declared the successor to the throne. The King, according to the chroniclers, attempted to excuse his exactions and prises, by stating that he could not continue his enterprises without the liberal help of the people. But the Earls of Hereford and Norfolk objected to perform their offices, which were immediately bestowed upon Thomas de Berkely and Galfridus de Geneville; and this affront, perhaps, stimulated them to the course which they immediately pursued. —"Rex in suo proposito permanens, præcepit, ut omnes, qui servicium sibi debebant, et omnes alii, qui viginti libratas terræ à quocumque tenerent infra Regnum Angliæ, essent Londoniis in festo Beati Petri ad Vincula, parati cum equis et armis ad transfretandum cum eo absque dilacione qualibet vel excusacione. Cumque venissent ibidem multi, et viderent Regem in incepto proposito permanere, dixerunt ei quidam, Non expedit, ô Rex, nec bonum est sic transfretare, nisi, primo reconciliato patre tuo spirituali Cantuariensi Archiepiscopo et Magnatibus tuis, inveniaris et ipse sinu matris ecclesiæ numeratus. At ille in se reversus, et videns hoc justum esse et racioni consonum, mox accersito Cantuariensi Archiepiscopo, qui præsens aderat, et omni rancore deposito, ipsum cum suis in specialitatem recepit pristinam, et majorem adauxit, confidens eum de bonitate ipsius et constancia, curam et custodiam Edwardi filii sui et tocius terræ Angliæ, adjuncto sibi Domino Reginaldo de Gray, coram omni populo commisit, præcepitque ut omnia sibi restituerentur, eciam usque ad ultimum quadrantem, sicque, favente Deo, cum honore reductus est, qui mortem non metuens, pro honore Dei certavit ad mortem: omnesque Magnates, qui ibi aderant, ipso Regis filio, ex præcepto patris, fidelitatem faciebant, et ab omni populo, levatis dextris, verus conclamabatur hæres, futurus Dominus, et regni successor. Excusavit eciam se Rex de exaccionibus et prisis quas à populo susceperat dicens, se incepta prosequi non posse, nisi eorum subveniret larga manus, præcipue cum non suam tantum, immo tocius populi ageret causam, tanquam protector eorum et defensor. Rogavitque populum, accepta licencia ut omnia condonarentur ei, et orarent pro eo. Et orabant quidam publice, alii autem maledicebant in occulto. Prædicti vero Comites Herefordensis et Marescallus, à Rege se subtrahentes, cum votis ipsius non parerent, ab eorum officiis absoluti sunt, deditque Rex eorum officia aliis quibusdam qui ministrarent ei." (Hemingford, p. 113, 114.) "Rex omnes qui sibi servitium debebant, ceterosque omnes qui viginti libratas terræ et amplius tenebant, citari fecit, ut Londoniis in festo Sancti Petri ad Vincula parati essent cum equis et armis, transfretaturi cum eo, et Regis stipendiis militaturi." (Trivetus, p. 298.) "Rex Angliæ in festo S. Petri ad Vincula Londoniis Parliamentum tenens, in primis Archiepiscopum recepit in gratiam, omnibus quæ ejus erant restitutis eidem. Deinde præcepit magnatibus, qui tunc aderant, ut fidelitatem filio suo facerent, ipsumque regni hæredem et suum futurum recognoscerent dominum." (Trivetus, p. 300.) The King published a statement explaining and justifying his conduct, which was transmitted to all the Sheriffs of England; this document rectifies some of the statements of the chroniclers. (1) The instructions give minute directions respecting the language which the Commissioners were to employ. It appears that the service on this occasion was to be considered as a voluntary act, which the King could not enforce without the consent of the people.

(2) These writs are contained in the bundles of Miscellaneous Rolls, amongst which they were placed of late years. They were probably classed amongst the rolls in consequence of the Returns being engrossed upon very long and narrow schedules or pannels.

(1) After the Muster or Parliament at London, the King, having first assisted at the funeral of Edmund Earl of Lancaster, proceeded to St. Albans, where, by the advice of his Council, he pardoned Ralph Mahermer, who, for his offences in marrying Joan Countess of Gloucester, the King's daughter, had been committed to Bristol Castle. The Countess was required to find one hundred men to serve in France (p. 296. No. 36.); but, according to the usual variations of popular report, Trivetus represents that the service of fifty men at arms was charged upon Mahermer. About this time he also liberated the Earls of Athol and Menteith, and several other of the Scottish prisoners, who, as it seems, had been kept in custody up to this time, upon condition that they should perform Military Service in Flanders. Various instruments were executed to ensure their true and faithful performance of the conditions. (Fœd. N. E. vol. i. pp. 868, 869, 872.) The King then marched to Winchelsea, (Hemingford says Portsmouth, but erroneously,) where he stationed himself with such army as he could collect under Thomas de Berkeley as Constable and Galfridus de Geneville as Marshal, and awaited the arrival of further forces. In the meanwhile the discontented Earls, and their adherents, had prepared their articles of complaint — "Articuli quos Comites petierunt nomine communitatis," containing a statement of the grievances which they sustained contrary to law and the provisions of the Charters. (Hemingford, p. 115, 116. — Trivetus, p. 302, 304.) The King received the messengers at Odmere near Winchelsea; he refused to give any answer to the articles, alledging that part of his Council was in London and part in Flanders: but he published the justificatory statement before alluded to (p. 29. Note 2.), and in which he states, in general terms, that the "grandz seigneurs," then lately with him in London, had made a "doun commun" for the confirmation of the Charters. About the 23d August he sailed for Flanders, in the ship called "Cog Edward." (Fœdera, N. E. vol. i. p. 872, 876.) "Cumque esset Dominus Rex in suo itinere apud Portesmew, quasi ad transfretandum paratus, miserunt ad eum prædicti Comites, nuncios, qui voluntatem ipsius quærerent in præmissis. (1) About this time the Kingdom was in great confusion. On Thursday next before the feast of St. Bartholomew (22 Aug.), the Earls of Hereford and Norfolk, with the leading Barons of their party, appeared at the Bar of the Court of Exchequer, and in the name of themselves and the "Communaute" of the Kingdom, as well clerks as laymen, protested against the prise of wools, and also against the commissions which had been issued for the collection of the Eighth, stated in such commissions to have been granted by the Earls, Barons, Knights, and the "Communaute" of the Kingdom, whereas they never did grant the same. A statement of these proceedings was instantly transmitted to the King, who returned an answer by letters under the privy seal, that proclamation should be made that the levy of the Eighth should not turn into precedent — "que la taxacion ne la leve ne poit turner en servage de nuly ne estre trait en usage en tems a venir. Mes que le Rey s'en puisse eider ore pur son grant busoin qe est si hastif pur la sauvacion de luy et d'eux mesmes, et de tut le reaume et pur allegier lui et eux des mischiefs dunt il unt esté chargies ja grant piece. Et voit qe le Chancellor fra lettres pur ceux que doubtera . . . Et quant a la prise de leynes vuelt que l'ordinaunce que ent se feist se teigne, et dist soit par tut auxi par vous come par ceux qui se intromitterent, que le Rey ne voit rien prendre mes par achat, fesant gree." And letters patent, testifying that the levy of the Eighth should not prejudice the people in future, were issued accordingly by Prince Edward; tested at Tunbridge, 28 Aug. (Fœdera, N. E. vol. i. p. 877.) The dispatch from the Barons of the Exchequer, and the King's reply, printed by Maynard, (Y. B. Mem. in Scacc. 25 Ed. I. p. 39.), enable us to correct the statements of the chroniclers. Trivetus refers the complaint of the Earls to the Eighth granted in the Parliament at Bury. Hemingford adds, that the levy of the Fifth required from the Clergy was also forbidden by them — "Comites Herfordiæ et Marescalli cum complicibus suis, post Regis transitum, Thesaurario et Baronibus de Scaccario inhibuerunt ne levari facerent octavum denarium à populo, qui Regi concessus fuerit apud Sanctum Eadmundum." (Trivetus, p. 305.) "Comites vero prædicti, cum quibusdam Baronibus complicibus suis reversi sunt Londonias, prohibentes Cancellario Regis et Baronibus Scaccarii ne octavum denarium quem Rex expetierat à populo, vel quintum, à clero, seu aliquam vexationem expeterent vel levarent quoquo modo." (Hemingford, p. 117.)

(1) The successes of the Scots (v. Note 1. p. 35.) alarmed the Council, and induced them, according to Hemingford, to advise Prince Edward to appease the differences between the King and the discontented nobles. Writs were therefore issued, summoning a "Parliament," which Hemingford states was held on the 10 Oct.; it is therefore probable that the conventions or assemblies summoned by the writs upon record, were held upon that day, which was the morrow of the "quarto die post" of the return of the writs of election, and the day when the letters patent of indemnity were sealed. The Earls and their party were attended by a great armed force, and the commands given to the Earl of Cornwall, and the others who adhered to the King, were probably intended to keep the opposition in check. The peace was concluded by the mediation of Robert Winchelsea, Archbishop of Canterbury; it being stipulated that the King should confirm the Charters, and that in time to come no aid or impost should be exacted or demanded from the Clergy or Laity without the assent and consent of the Magnates. And for this grant and confirmation the Laity gave a Ninth, the Clergy of the Province of Canterbury a Tenth, and the Clergy of York a Fifth, the latter increasing their gift on account of the more imminent danger to which they were exposed. — "Cum à gente Scotorum perfida talia gererentur, consiliarii Regis nostri, qui cum filio Regis erant, magnum videntes periculum, non tantum Regi, in remotis agenti, sed eciam toti terræ Anglicanæ imminere, instituerunt apud filium Regis, qui propter sedicionis periculum, Londoniis morabatur infra muros civitatis, ut Comites prædictos, Marescallum scilicet et Herefordensem, qui (ut dictum est) à patre suo in parte deciderant, rogaret et interpellaret ad pacis unitatem et amorem. Missis ergo literis suis, rogavit eos ut ad Parliamentum suum, eo quod patris sui locum tenebat, in Angliam venirent Londoniis decimo die Octobris celebrandum. Qui novi Præceptoris et futuri Principis rogatum amplectentes, venerunt ad eundem diem, non tamen nudi, immo cum mille quingentis equis armatis, et magna parte peditum electorum: portas tamen civitatis noluerunt ingredi, nisi primo concederetur eis, quod in omnibus portis civitatis ponerentur prius custodes eorum, ne forte absque armis ingressi, velut oves in ovili clauderentur. Quo concesso, ingressi sunt, ubi tandem post consilia multa et tractatus varios, mediante venerabili patre Cantuariensi Archiepiscopo, Magistro scilicet Roberto de Wynchelse, cujus memoria in benedictione est, non fuit alia forma, ad quam consentire voluerunt, nisi quod ipse Dominus Rex Magnam Cartam, cum quibusdam articulis adjectis, et Cartam de Foresta concederet et confirmaret. Et quod nullum auxilium seu vexacionem à Clero vel Populo peteret vel exigeret in posterum absque Magnatum voluntate et assensu." (Hemingford, p. 137, 138.) "Dum hæc agerentur à Scotis, suasum est filio Regis à Concilio suo ut Comites Herfordiæ et Marescalli vocaret, et si quo modo posset, ad pacem alliceret. Qui cum vocati venirent in formam pacis subscriptam voluerunt et in nullam aliam consentire. — The charter or statute "de tallagio non concedendo" follows, under the title of "Articuli adjecti ad Magnam Chartam." ..... Missis sic in Flandriam nuntiis ad ipsum Regem, confirmationem omnium istorum per Chartam sub sigillo suo, tanquam ab eo qui in arcto positus erat, et cedendum malitiæ temporibus censuit, obtinuerunt." (Trivetus, p. 307, 309). The confirmations of Magna Carta and of Carta de Foresta are tested by Prince Edward at Westminster, 12 Oct. The pardons for the Earls of Hereford and Norfolk, the latter of which recites the substance of the letters patent of the Prince and his Council, were sealed at Ghent on the 5th Nov., and from thence transmitted to England. It is probable that the Charter, usually called the statute "de tallagio non concedendo," was sealed at the same time; but the original is not extant, nor is it enrolled. (Statutes of the Realm, vol. i. p. 114, 126.)

(2) In the inrolment, by a manifest error, the name of the County of Cornwall, "Cornub'," is inserted instead of "Cumb';" but in the Commission of the 23 Oct. the error is corrected.

(1) Great apprehensions were excited by the incursions of the Scots under Wallace, who, immediately after the battle of Stirling (11 Sept.), recovered Berwick, and marched with all his forces into the Northern Counties. These forces were raised for the purpose of opposing him, but he fell back upon Scotland before they could reach him. (Hemingford, p. 132.)

(2) "It is not ascertained whether this was a Parliamentary grant; and the whole proceedings with respect to these aids and the confirmation of the "Charters seem little to accord with a clear, settled, and established form of granting aids by a legislative assembly, constituted according to clear, settled, "and established law. The King seems first to have endeavoured to obtain a large grant by some irregular means, and then to have submitted to confirm "the Charters and receive a smaller aid, perhaps without the formal grant of an assembly constituted according to the present constitution of Parliament, "at least as to Cities and Boroughs. The conclusion of the transactions seems to have been rather a compromise between the King and the people, both "parties dreading the consequences of further contest, than a legal constitutional act." (1) To this Parliament the Scottish nobles were summoned, the King intimating that if they made default they would be considered as enemies of the state. As they neither appeared in person nor sent excuses, the King ordained, with the advice of his "optimates," who had come to him from Berwick, that his Lieges should meet him, with horses and arms, at Roxburgh, on the Morrow of St. John the Baptist. The Earls and Barons who were present at this Parliament, are stated to have demanded a confirmation of the Charters. Those who are particularly mentioned are the Earls of Warrenne, Gloucester, Norfolk, Hereford, and Arundel. Joan Countess of Gloucester was with her husband, and Guy, the son of the Earl of Warwick, in the place of his father. The Barons were Henry de Percy, John Wake, John de Segrave, and many other Magnates. Pursuant to this demand, the Charter, with the additional articles, were read; and the Bishop of Carlisle, in full pontificals, fulminated the sentence of excommunication against all such as should violate it. In the text of Hemingford, as published, there are two narratives; the first of which states the Parliament to have been held at York, on the Morrow of St. Hilary, when the King was not yet in England, and that the muster was appointed at Newcastle-upon-Tyne, on the Octaves of St. Hilary: from a comparison of these passages with Walsingham, who states that the Scots were summoned at York, on the Octaves of St. Hilary, it appears probable that two Conventions were held at York; one either on the Morrow or on the Octaves of St. Hilary, to which the Scots were summoned for the first time, and in which a ratification of the confirmation of the Charters was demanded by the Earls and Barons; and another at Whitsuntide, in the latter of which the Scots were summoned a second time, and when the ratification took place; and that these proceedings were erroneously blended: — "Misit etiam Rex literas suas ad Magnates Scotiæ, ut, si in fide et in fidelitate sua manerent, sicut in recessu suo se remanere promiserant, ad Parliamentum suum apud Eborum, quod per Comites suos in crastino Sancti Hilarii celebrandum statuerat, absque omni cavillatione venirent, alioquin, ex tunc, velut hostes publici tenerentur. Ad quam quidem diem convenerunt Comites nostri isti scilicet; Comes de Warenna qui locum Regis tenens, personam ipsius præsentabat in hoc, Comes Gloucestriæ, cum Comitissa uxore sua, filia Regis, Comes Marescallus, Comes Herefordensis, Comes de Arundell, et Gwydo filius Comitis de Warewyk, patris locum tenens, Barones eciam isti, scilicet, Henricus de Percy, Johannes de Wak, Johannes de Segrave, et Magnates plurimi, communicatoque consilio, voluerunt, ut constaret communi populo de confirmacione Magnæ Cartæ et Cartæ de Foresta; unde lecta Magna Carta cum articulis insertis, quos enumeravimus supra, de præcepto eorum, Karliolensis Episcopus, pontificalibus indutus, excommunicationis sententiam in omnes ejus violatores fulminavit. Cumque non venirent Scoti, neque mitterent, statuerunt, ut in Octavis sequentibus apud Novum Castrum super Tynam omnis numeraretur populus expeditus ad pugnam." (Hemingford, p. 144.) "Anno Domini MCC. nonagesimo octavo, postquam reversus est Rex à Flandria, statuit Parliamentum suum apud Eborum, in festo Pentecostes, præmisitque literas suas ad Magnates Scotiæ, ut, si in fidelitate sua, in qua eos dimiserat, adhuc persistendo manerent, in eodem Parliamento modis omnibus se absque ulla excusatione præsentarent: alioquin, omni ambiguitate postposita, eos velut hostes publicos censeret hostiliter, et cum omni festinatione, expetendos. Cumque non venirent neque mitterent, ordinavit Rex cum optimatibus suis, qui ibidem occurrerant ei ab urbe de Berewick, et in osculo pacis ab eo suscepti sunt, ut in crastino Nutivitatis beati Johannis Baptistæ apud Rokesburgh cum equis, omnes sui fideles convenirent." (p. 158.) "Interim Comites nostri Marescallus et Herfordensis, propter quædam audita, dubitantes de mutatione voluntatis regiæ, in confirmatione Chartarum Libertatis et Forestæ, eo quod confirmaverat eas in terra aliena, dixerunt se ulterius procedere non debere, nisi major fieret securitas, et de equitatione forestæ, et de cæteris articulis postulatis. Verum quia in persona propria Principem jurare non licet, et eos placare vellet, ex præcepto Regis juraverunt in animam ejus, Dunelmensis Episcopus, Comes de Warenna, Comes Gloucestriæ et Comes Lincolniensis, quod in reditu suo (obtenta victoria) omnia perimpleret ad votum." (Hemingford, p. 159.) "Mandavit Rex Angliæ Comitibus et Magnatibus terræ suæ ut assisterent Comiti de Warenna Custodi Scotiæ ad comprimendum rebelliones Scotorum præfigens eis terminum, Octavas Sancti Hilarii, in quo parati forent Eboraci contra hostes ulterius progressuri, ad quem diem et locum mandavit Majoribus Scotiæ ut venirent, alioquin hostes publici haberentur. ... Comes Warennæ Custos Scotiæ ac Comites alii juxta mandatum regium, Eboracum convenientes in Octavis Sancti Hilarii publicata confirmatione Chartarum articulorum adjectorum, versus Scotiam processerunt. Majores Scotorum Eboracum non venientes, secundum vocationem regiam, se infra terræ suæ terminos tenuerunt ..... Rex Edwardus in Angliam veniens ..... Scotorum rebellionem disponens reprimere, et eos ad debitam coercere subjectionem, Parliamentum tenuit Eboraci, vocatisque Scotorum majoribus, cum non venirent suis indixit, ut cum equis et armis parati essent Rokesburgiæ in festo Sancti Johannis Baptistæ. Rex interim visitato Sancto Johanne de Beverlaco rediens Rokesburgiam, invenit ad præfixum terminum exercitum congregatum. Sub eisdem diebus Comites Herefordiæ et Marescalli, quia confirmatio Chartarum fuit facta in terra aliena, petiverunt ad majorem securitatem eas iterum confirmari." (Walsingham, p. 74, 75.)

(2) The enrolled writ concludes with a "Teste ut supra," i. e. at Westminster, 10 April; but all the original writs (with the exception of the London writ) are tested at Fulham, 13 April. This is one of the many proofs of the irregularities of the enrolments.

(1) After the gaining of the battle of Falkirk, the Earls of Norfolk and Hereford became again discontented, and obtained leave to return home. The King then held a "Parliament" or Assembly of his Military Tenants at Carlisle, about the Octaves of the Nativity of the Virgin, 15 Sept., in which he granted the hope of the domains of many of the "Magnates" of Scotland, Earldoms to Earls, and Baronies to Barons — "Et cum esset Rex apud Karliolum ..... remansit ibidem cum magnatibus plurimis; tenuitque Parliamentum suum juxta Octavas Beatæ Virginis, et assignavit et dedit in spe Magnatibus suis terras multas Magnatum Regni Scotiæ, scilicet Comitatus Comitibus, et Baronias Baronibus." (1) After Christmas the King crossed the Humber, and took his road to London, advancing by easy journeys, and where he held the Parliament which was summoned by these writs. The differences between Edward and Philip had been submitted to the award and mediation of Boniface VIII., not as Pope of Rome, but in his private capacity, and as Benedict of Gaeta. (Fœdera, N. E. vol. i. p. 887, 888, 894, 895.) The Pope made his award in June 1298, by which he pronounced that Edward should marry Margaret the sister of the King of France; and that Isabella his daughter should be married to Edward the King's son. (Fœdera, N. E. vol. i. p. 894.) When the Parliament assembled, the Papal Bull was read to the "Plebs," and the Clergy; who, as far as in them was, assented to the terms imposed: but they proceeded to other business, and the Earls of Norfolk and of Hereford again insisted upon the confirmation of the Charters, which the King had so often promised to ratify. The King equivocated, and sought delay. Being at length urged by many others, he promised to give his answer on the morrow; but on the morrow he secretly departed from the city. When the Earls heard of his flight, they followed him with a great multitude. "Dearly beloved," he told them, "the bad air of the town hath hurt our health, and therefore we departed, in order that having obtained a change of air, we may recruit ourselves a little; but do ye go back to town, and ye shall receive an answer from our Council." This answer was by no means acceptable; for though the King had sealed the confirmation, he added these words at the end, "saving the rights of our Crown;" and the Earls refused to accept the Charters. Matthew of Westminster says that the King agreed to ratify the Charters, but refused to consent to the disforestation which had been pointed out by the perambulations; but it is easy to account for this variation in the narrative. The Council apprehending that the people would rise, delivered the Charters to the Sheriffs of London, in order that they might be read in public; which was done accordingly in St. Paul's Church Yard, before a great multitude, who, when they first saw the Charters, began to utter blessings, which were turned into curses when they heard the captious conclusion. The Parliament was dissolved, or rather adjourned, a day being given for its reassembling in the Quinzaine of Easter. "—— Post peracta solenniter Christi natalicia, transivit Rex Humbriam, tendens Londoniis per modicas dietas, tenuitque ibidem parliamentum suum in principio Quadragesimæ, ubi per prædictos Comites, Marescallum scilicet et Herfordensem, facta est contentio magna super confirmatione Magnæ Chartæ, quam innovare et perficere multociens Rex ipse promiserat. Distulitque respondere Rex in dies plurimos, et variantia verba componebat. Tandem vero cum urgeretur à multis, dixit, se respondere debere in crastinum. Et facto mane, recessit ab urbe latenter. Quod cum audissent Comites, insecuti sunt eum cum multitudine magna, causantes recessum et certæ præfixionis quasi enervatum responsum. Quibus Rex ait, "Certe, charissimi mei, aër civitatis corruptus nocuit nobis, et ideo recessimus, ut, aëre mutato, saltem in modico recreemur. Sed redite ad urbem, et accipietis responsum à consilio nostro." Qui cum abissent, audierunt responsum non acceptabile quidem sed variabile. Articulos enim, quos ipsi petierant, sic confirmaverat Rex, ut in fine adjiceret, "salvo jure coronæ nostræ." Quod auditum displicuit, et recesserunt ad propria impacati. Consiliarii autem Regis, timentes seditionem populi, tradiderunt utrasque Chartas sic resignatas

Vicecomitibus Londoniensibus, ut in publico legerentur. Factumque est sic, in Cœmeterio Sancti Pauli, congregato populo numeroso; cumque viderentur imprimis Chartæ sic consignatæ, benedixerunt Dominum et Regem, sed, audito fine captioso, confestim improperantes, maledictionem pro benedictione intulerunt. Dissolutumque est consilium, et comites nostri, ut convenirent iterato in quindenam Paschæ, ante eorum recessum, diem receperunt." (Hemingford, p. 168.) "Citatis Magnatibus regni apud Westmonasterium, fecit Rex recitari formam pacis bullatam per Papam Bonefacium, tanquam arbitrum inter Reges Angliæ et Franciæ ordinatum, et alias bullas statum suum tangentes, cui assensum præbuit plebs omnis et clerus. Quo facto, petierunt Comites, Barones, et Prælati, ut Magnam Chartam de Libertatibus et illam de Foresta, una cum deforestatione jam facta, ratificaret, et pro rato et grato haberet. Qui confirmatis duabus primis prædictis Chartis, super deforestatione roboranda obturavit auditum, elongans se diluculo ab eis tanquam se fingens longius ire. Ipsi autem sese æstimantes quasi derelictos contemptui, ad loca propria cum indignatione maxima redierunt." (Mat. Westm. p. 412.)

(1) Probably the day of the opening of the Parliament.

(2) This Parliament was held in pursuance of a resolution of the Lent Parliament. The King now thought it advisable to yield to the wishes of the Earls and their partizans; and it was agreed, according to Hemingford, that the perambulations of the forests throughout England should be made by three Bishops, three Earls, and three Barons. (Hemingford, p. 168.) "In quo quidem colloquio Londoniis celebrato, Rex quasi omnia petita concessit, et votis eorum paruit. Compromiseruntque, quantum ad equitationem forestarum in omni regno Angliæ, in tres Episcopos, tres Comites, et tres Barones, ut ipsi, Dominum habentes præ oculis, forestas equitari facerent, et dubia emergentia secundum Dominum et justitiam dirimerentur et declararentur." The writ or charter intituled in the printed copies "Statutum de finibus levatis," but of which the portion relating to fines is by far the smallest and least important, is tested at Westminster, 2 April. It recites the confirmation of the Charters, and the King thereby wills "that the perambulation shall be made." This charter, thus sealed before the sitting of the Easter Parliament, was probably intended to allay the discontent of the people in the meanwhile.

(1) It is alledged that various Lords of Franchises had refused to allow their tenants to serve in the army, at the King's pay, in manner accustomed in former wars.

(2) Edward assembled his army at Carlisle about Midsummer: he invaded the Western Marches, wasted Annandale, took the Castle of Caerlaverock, and received the homage of the men of Galloway. But the Scots avoided a general action, and endeavoured to harass their enemies, by depriving them of the means of subsistence; and the English were still further distressed by the inclemency of the weather. Under these untoward circumstances, Edward availed himself of the mediation of the King of France, by whose intervention a truce was concluded at Dumfries, on the 30 Oct. (Fœdera, N. E. vol. i. p. 925.) The fullest account of these events is found in Peter Langtoft (p. 310.), from whom the following lines are extracted.

" At Karlele is þe Kyng with Erles and Barons

(1) Great debates arose at this Parliament respecting the perambulation of the forests, which are told in the Chronicles with much obscurity and confusion both of time and place. Hemingford (p. 171.), and Trivetus (p. 318), who have been followed by Walsingham, speak of a Parliament at Stamford, held about Lent, meaning perhaps this assembly, although the account is followed by a distinct narrative of the Parliament at Lincoln, and of the reply given to the Pope's Bull. Langtoft, who is more full in his narrative, says that the Parliament was held after Easter:—

"At þe Pask afterward, his Parliament set he þe gode King Edward at Lyncoln his cité.
At Saint Katerine hous þe Erl Mareschalle lay
In the brode gate lay the Brus, Erle was he þat day
þe King lay at Netelham, it is þe Bisshope's toun
And oþer Lordes þer cam in þe cuntre up and down.
"Erles and Barons at ther first sumnyng

Ne þer Chartre gaf fre, þe poyntes use ne wuld,
Ne suffre þam to hold þat þe Chartre of spake
Thorgh mayntenours bold, þe poyntes alle þei brake."—p. 312.

After many disputes, in which the parties were "so felle altercand" that it was doubted whether peace should be kept or war arise, the "Barons" agreed to grant the fifteenth penny to the King, as a consideration for the sealing of the Charters and for the perambulation so eagerly sought and so strongly contested. The perambulations were accordingly made; and the Rolls are now extant in the Tower. The perambulation of Epping Forest has been printed by Manwood, chap. 20. It was confirmed by charter, tested at Lincoln, 14 Feb. 29 Ed. I., and the purlieu thus ascertained was to be conclusive both on the Crown and the subject: whatever was disforested was to remain so, and whatever was then allowed to be forest, according to the metes and bounds therein set forth, was to remain so for ever. The teste shews that Langtoft is erroneous in his date, though he may be correct in his account of the transaction. The general confirmation of the Charters was also sealed on the same day. (Charters of Liberties, p. 44.)

(1) A Bull had been issued by the Pope, claiming the superiority of Scotland as a feud of the Holy See (Fœdera, N.E. vol. i. p. 907.), which was transmitted to the King by Robert Winchelsea Archbishop of Canterbury. (Mat. West. p. 424, 426.) The Archbishop, in his dispatch to the Pope, informed him that no answer could be given by the King without the advice of the Prelates, Earls, Barons, and others of the Kingdom; and that, as soon as he could conveniently do so, he would deliberate thereon, and send an account of their resolutions to the Pope by his own Embassadors. In pursuance of these transactions, the business was taken into consideration in the Parliament at Lincoln. Some of the documents relating to the proceedings of the assembly have been published by Prynne (Records, vol. iii. p. 885, &c.); amongst others he has given the returns made by the Chancellors of Oxford and Cambridge to the writs directed to them, and which he quotes as then existing in the bundles of writs in the Tower. By the advice of the Parliament, or Council, as it is termed by Hemingford, the King returned a very elaborate reply, drawn up by Rishanger the Chronicler (Hemingford, p. 177.); but which does not appear to have been sent until the ninth of May. It is enrolled on the Close Roll (29 Ed. I. m. 10 & 9.) — (Fœdera, N. E. vol. i. p. 932, 933.); and the Magnates, at the instance of the King, addressed this letter to the Pope, of which two copies are preserved in the Chapter House, and which is transcribed by the Chroniclers with tolerable accuracy. (Hemingford, p. 186. — Mat. West. p. 435.) The Fourth Report of the Lords Committees, &c. contains some valuable remarks upon this document.

(1) Edward began his march into Scotland about Midsummer, the truce having concluded at Whitsuntide. No facts are noticed with respect to this campaign, which seems to have been very inactive. Edward, as mentioned in the "Creaunce" of the 18 Dec. 1301 (p. 401. No. 46.), wintered in Scotland, where the English lost many of their horses, in consequence of the severity of the weather and the scarcity of forage — "Anno Domini millesimo tricentesimo primo, finitis treugis in festo Pentecostes inter Regem et Scotos initis, congregavit Rex exercitum, et circiter festum Beati Johannis Baptistæ in Scotiam profectus est; hiemavitque ibidem et natale suum tenuit apud Linlyscoth perdideruntque sui equos multos, propter defectum foragii et frigus hiemale." | | Writ of summons to the same effect, addressed to "Edwardus" Prince of Wales and Earl of Chester, commanding his attendance, "in fide et dilectione," as one of the "Magnates." ... | | |

(1) The King of France having dispatched his Embassadors to Edward, a truce was concluded by their mediation, which was to endure until the feast of St. Andrew, 30 Nov. 1302, the said feast to be included in the term "le jour d'icelle feste enclos en la dite trieve." The treaty is dated at Linlithgow, 26 Jan. 130½. (Fœdera, N. E. vol. i. p. 937.) Hemingford, who is followed by the other Chroniclers, represents the truce as concluding at the feast of All Saints. On the King's return to England, he is said to have held a "Parliament" at London, about the middle of Lent. Perhaps the Council summoned by these writs has some relation to this statement: — "Misit Rex Franciæ nuncios et literas pro Scotis ut ad rogatum ipsius inirentur treugæ, saltem usque ad festum Omnium Sanctorum. Et quia Rex sororem suam de novo duxerat in uxorem, noluit ei contradicere, sed rogata concessit, appositisque custodibus in confiniis, reversus est Londoniis, et Parliamentum ibidem tenuit in medio quadragesimæ. (Hemingford, p. 197.)

| 1302. — Westminster, 1 July. | Pleas before the King and Council in the Chapter House of the Monastery of Tynemouth, on Thursday before the Nativity of St. John the Baptist, 22 June 1301. — "Antonius" Bishop of Durham, is arraigned in the presence of the King, before the Chancellor, "Rogerus le Brabanzon," "Willielmus de Bereford," and "Willielmus Howard," Justices; and in the presence also of the Archdeacon of Richmond, and other of the King's lieges. — For that whereas the King having by his letters patent taken into his special protection the Prior of Durham and all his men, the said Bishop and "Philippus Darcy," Constable of his Castle of Durham, had imprisoned "Willielmus de Brometoft," one of the men of the said Prior, contrary to the said letters of protection; and in consequence of his having produced such protection when arraigned or impleaded before the Justices of the Bishoprick [which appears to have been treated as a contempt of court]. — And the Bishop, altogether disavowing the said imprisonment, pleads that the said "Willielmus de Brometoft" was never taken or imprisoned by his command; but that he found him detained in prison on account (as alledged by the said "Philippus Darcy") of certain trespasses laid to his charge. — And that after the Bishop understood that the said "Willielmus" was detained, in consequence of having produced the King's protection, he ordered that he should be discharged upon bail, which bail the said "Willielmus" refused to find. — And the said Bishop further saith, that after he understood the cause of the imprisonment of the said "Willielmus," he was not detained in prison for more than one month. — And, as to the said detention, he submits himself entirely to the will and grace of the King. — A day is given to the Bishop to hear the King's will in the next Parliament; and he is enjoined to deliver the said "Willielmus" from prison without any manucaption; and Justices are assigned by the King to see that the said "Willielmus" is so delivered, to assign him a day to appear in the next Parliament; which Justices, on the following Friday, proceed to Durham, and finding the said "Willielmus" at liberty, they assign him a day in Parliament accordingly. — And at the Parliament at Westminster, to wit, in Eight Days of St. John the Baptist, 30 Ed. I., the said "Willielmus de Bruntoft" appears;" but the Bishop makes default, and does not appear, either to hear the King's will, or to defend his franchise. — Judgment that the franchise shall be seized into the King's hands, and that the Bishop be attached by his body; and also that the said "Willielmus" do recover his damages against the Bishop, which, "by the discretion of the Judges," are assessed at £20. (1) Anthony Beck, the warlike Bishop of Durham, had distrained the Knights and tenants of his franchise to perform Military Service in Scotland, a measure which gave rise to violent disputes and dissensions. The men of the Bishoprick maintained that neither for King nor Bishop were they bound to cross the Tyne or the Tees. Neville and Fitz Marmaduke were the leaders of this opposition, which was composed of almost all the Knights and Freeholders of the Bishoprick; and at their common expence the business was prosecuted "in Parliament and in the Curia Regis:"—"Hujus dissensionis capitales erant Radulphus de Nova Villa et Johannes Marmeduci. Adhærebant cum eis fere omnes de Episcopatu, Milites et Libere Tenentes, et sumptibus eorum communibus, prosecuti sunt negotia sua in Parliamento et Curia Regis." (1) Edward sent his army into Scotland under Johannes de Segrave and his brothers, who arrived in the neighbourhood of Edinburgh towards the beginning of Lent. The English, who, as Hemingford says, were not on their guard against the wiles of the Scots, were attacked at Rosslyn, on the first Sunday in Lent, 24 Feb., by the enemy under Comyn and Simon Fraser, and totally defeated. (Hemingford, p. 197. — Trivetus, p. 336.) After this defeat Edward directed all his forces to Scotland, the circumstance of his assembling them at Roxburgh being particularly noticed by Hemingford (p. 205): from thence he advanced and wasted all the country as far as Caithness; nor was there any one who could withstand him.

"In þe next Somerestide, Sir Edward had haste,
No lenger wild he bide, Scotland for to waste;

(1) This commission was afterwards given up and cancelled.

(2) Scotland was now almost wholly occupied by the English. Edward, after overrunning the country, received the submission of the Nobility, who flocked in and surrendered to his power; and he passed the winter at Dunfermline. The castle of Stirling alone held out, under the command of Sir William Oliphant or Olifard; and in a "Parliament," as it was called, which was held at St. Andrew's, the defenders were outlawed as traitors, by the assent of the assembly; and the King, by the advice of the "Proceres," English as well as Scots, decided to lay siege to the fortress. In this assembly also a similar sentence of outlawry was pronounced against Fraser and Wallace. (Trivetus, p. 337. — Fœdera, N. E. vol. i. p. 965.) The siege began on the feast of St. George, 22 April, and on the feast of St. Margaret, 20 July, the Castle capitulated; and a solemn instrument of the surrender was drawn up and attested by a public notary on the 24 July. The King ordered that Sir William Olifard and his followers, about one hundred and forty in number, should be kept in safe custody until the next Parliament which he should hold at London, and they were accordingly dispersed in various prisons. The King then departed for the South by very short journies, probably on account of his increasing infirmities; and he kept his Christmas at Lincoln: — "Videntes autem Scoti; se nullo modo posse resistere, miserunt ad Regem rogantes humiliter ea quæ pacis sunt. Et si permittere vellet quod terras suas, quas suis magnatibus dederat et promiserat ante, possent sub eo pacifice possidere et tenere, libenter eas redimerent dato precio. Et erant in numero plusquam C.XL. Et traditi sunt carceribus per diversa loca. | 1305. — Westminster, 26 March. | Memorandum concerning the state of the Kingdom of Scotland: — | | |
| | Opinions given by the Bishop of Glasgow, [Robert Bruce] Earl of Carrick, and "Johannes de Moubrai," in answer to the questions upon which the King had commanded them to advise, viz. | | |
| | I. — Concerning the place and time of holding a Parliament on the affairs of Scotland. Ans. — The place at the will of the King, but let it please him to consider the situation of his people of Scotland. — The time also at his will; but it seems to them that such Parliament cannot be conveniently held before the feast of St. John the Baptist then next. II. — Concerning the persons who are to come to the Parliament. Ans. — Two Bishops, two Abbots, two Earls, two Barons, and two for the "Commune," one from this side of the Forth, and one from beyond the Forth, to be elected by the "Commune" of Scotland at their assembly. III. — Concerning the persons who are to remain in Scotland for the defence of the same. Ans. — The "Custodes" and officers of the King, together with the "Communaulte," will be sufficient to defend the said land. (1) | | |
| | The premises being read before the King and Council, the King replies, to the following effect: — I. — The King agrees that the Parliament of Scotland shall be held in Three Weeks of St. John the Baptist, 15 July. II. — That it shall be held at London. III. — And that the ten, to be elected by the whole "Communitas" as before mentioned, shall come to the Parliament for the whole "Communitas" of the land of Scotland. IV. — And as to the defence of Scotland, let the same be entrusted to the "Custodes" and ministers of the King, and to the "Communitas" of Scotland, in such manner as the Bishop of Glasgow, the Earl of Carrick, and "Johannes de Moubray" shall consent and ordain. | | The Bishop, Earl, and "Johannes de Moubrai" then petition that the persons to be elected by the "Communitas" of Scotland to come to the King's Parliament, may have their costs and expences, to be levied upon the said "Communitas." — The King assents to the request. | | |

(1) The opinions of the Commissioners are in French, the King's reply is in Latin. The sense of the word Commune or "Communitas," as here employed, is uncertain: Lord Hailes supposes that it meant the Communities of Boroughs. — (Annals of Scotland, vol. i. p. 346.)

(2) The "Ordinatio de Trailbaston" is extant on the Parliament Roll. (Rot. Parl. vol. i. p. 178.) The commission pursues the term of the ordinance. Lord Coke says they were called Justices of Trailbaston, because they proceeded as speedily as one might draw or trail a staff (4 Inst. 34.); and others have supposed that they obtained their title from their staves of office. It is obvious, however, that the name was originally applied either to the offence or the offenders.

(1) No writs of summons to this effect are enrolled.

(2) Probably an error for " in fide et homagio."

(3) Benedict XI. died 7 July 1304. After his death the Papal See was vacant for nearly eleven months. On the 5 June 1305, Clement V. was elected by the Conclave then sitting at Perugia (Art de verifier les Dates, vol. i. p. 312); but his nomination must have been known upon an earlier day, as the news could hardly reach England in twelve days. Edward dispatched several embassies to Pope Clement in the course of this year (Fœdera, N. E. vol. i. p. 974, 975.), for he had much business of importance to transact with the Papal See; and towards the close of the year he obtained the Papal Bull, by which Clement revoked and annulled the Great Charters, and absolved the King from the oaths which he had taken for the observance of the same. (Fœdera, N. E. vol. i. p. 978.)

(4) About this time Wallace was condemned and executed. Matthew of Westminster, who introduces an account of his death with a most furious invective, states that he was judged by the " nobiliores regni Angliæ," on the Eve of St. Bartholomew, 23 Aug. The repeated adjournments of the Parliament seem to have some relation to this t[illegible] Trivetus, who states the event more concisely, does not give any date: — " Guilelmus Walleis, prædo, sacrilegus,

(1) On the 15 October several of the persons thus summoned, viz. the Bishops of Worcester and Coventry and Lichfield, the Earl of Lincoln, Hugh le Despenser, Robertus de Pykering, Bartholomeus de Ferentino, and Philippus Martel, received a Commission or "Procuratorium," appointing them the King's Embassadors to the Court of Rome (Fœdera, *N. Another Commission or Letter of Credence was issued on the 27 October, the Embassadors being (amongst others) the Earl of Lincoln, Hugh le Despenser, and Philippus Martel, concerning "certain affairs touching the King's honour and the state of his Crown, and which he had greatly at heart." | | As to Coroners — those who are fit, are to be continued in their offices — if unfit, to be removed by the King's Lieutenant, the Chancellor, and the Chamberlain, unless they hold their offices by Charter; in which case they are to continue till the King shall have declared his pleasure. | | |

(1) According to Fordun, Wallace was betrayed by Menteith into the power of Edward: — "Hoc anno nobilis Willielmus Wallace, per Dominum Johannem de Menteth apud Glasgu, nil mali suspicans, fraudulenter et proditionaliter capitur, Regi Angliæ traditur," &c. (Fordun, lib. xii. c. vii.) Lord Hailes attempts to discredit the tradition. (Annals of Scotland, vol. i. p. 343.)

(2) There are several things remarkable in this catalogue: 1. No mention is made of Teviotdale, otherwise called Rokesburgh. It is probable that Teviotdale was under the jurisdiction of the Sheriff of Selkirk, excepting the Castellanies of Jedburgh and Rokesburgh. 2. No mention is made of Renfrew. At that time it and the forest of Paisley seem to have been parts of the Shire of Lanark (see Prynne, vol. iii. p. 657, 663.), where Houston, Fingulston, &c. are said to be in the Shire of Lanark. 3. The Shires and Counties are uniformly described by the name of the Head-borough. 4. Auchterarder is mentioned as a Shire; this seems to be Strathern. No Sheriff is appointed for it; probably because it was a small territory, and because the jurisdiction of the Earl of Strathern extended over the greatest part of it. 5. Forres and Nairn (then called Invernairn) are joined. 6. Ross-shire is not mentioned; it was within the jurisdiction of the Sheriff of Inverness. 7. Argyle, Caithness, and Sutherland, i. e. South Caithness, are omitted. It may be supposed that these remote districts were not totally subdued. 8. Mention is made of some heritable Sheriffs, who were continued in office, for such may be presumed to be the sense of the phrase, "celui qui est de fee." (Lord Haile's An. of Scotland, vol. i. p. 348, 349.)

| 1305.—Westminster, 15 Sept. | And concerning the laws and usages by which the land of Scotland is to be governed, it is ordained that the "usages of Scot and Bret" shall be thenceforth forbidden, and never more used.— And it is also ordained, that when the King's Lieutenant shall be in Scotland, he shall assemble the good people of the land at some convenient place, and there in his presence, and in the presence of the good people who shall be then assembled, there shall be read the laws of King David, and also the amendments and additions made by subsequent Kings. — And the Lieutenant with the Council which he shall there assemble, as well of English as of Scots, shall redress and amend the laws and usages evidently against the laws of God and reason, as well as they may in so short a time, and so far as they can act without consulting the King. — Such things as they cannot redress, or dare not undertake, without the advice of the King, together with those upon which they shall agree, to be put into writing, plainly and openly, by the assent of the King's Lieutenant and the persons there assembled, and under the seal of the Lieutenant; they shall be brought to the King at Westminster, in Three Weeks of Easter, by the said Lieutenant, and by such and so many of the people of Scotland whom the people of the "Communalte" of the land present at that assembly shall elect, in order to bear the same to the King. — And the persons so elected are to have full power on the part of the "Communalte" of the land to agree to what shall be then ordained, in such manner as all they of the said "Communalte" might do if they were then and there present. — And the King afterwards ordained, "that the time which was given to his Lieutenant and to the people of Scotland, to come to his Parliament in Three Weeks of Easter, should be enlarged until the Ascension." | 161162163 | 59 |

the Bruce had offered to God and the Church; and that he would then proceed to the Holy Land, and never afterwards take up arms against a Christian enemy. The Prince vowed that he would never sleep two nights successively in the same place until he should reach Scotland. After this display of chivalry, the Prince, together with many of the young nobility, who had been knighted at the same time, advanced to Scotland; the King and Queen followed by slow journeys, and Edward's increasing infirmities prevented him from joining the muster of the army: — "Post Pascha movit se Rex versus Londonias currizando, quia ob infirmitatem, quam habuit in tibiis, non potuit equitare. In festo igitur Pentecostes Rex filium suum armis militaribus cinxit, et cum eo Comites Warenniæ & Arundeliæ, aliosque quorum numerus ducentos et quadraginta dicitur excessisse. Eodem die cum sedisset Rex in mensa, novis militibus circumdatus, ingressa menestrellorum multitudo, portantium multiplici ornatu amictum, ut milites, præcipue novos, invitarent et inducerent ad vovendum factum armorum aliquod coram Cygno. Vovit et imprimis Rex ipse, quod vindictam accipiet de contemptu illato Deo et Ecclesiæ per Robertum de Brus: et hoc expleto, nunquam contra Christianos arma portaret, sed in Terram Sanctam, sine reditu, dirigeret iter suum. Vovit autem Regis filius, quod nunquam duas noctes in uno loco moraretur, quousque prosecuturus, quantum in ipso erat, votum paternum, in Scotiam perveniret. Cæterorum vota militum, memoriæ non occurrunt..... Edwardus, filius Regis Angliæ cum numerosa societate juvenum nobilium in festo Pentecostes Londoniis, à patre militaribus armis cinctus est: deinde, cum multitudine tironum, Scotiam continuatis dietis contendit, ad reprimendum conata Roberti de Brus invasoris Regiæ dignitatis. Another and more important conflict took place on the borders of Argyle, in which Bruce was overpowered by the forces under the command of the Lord of Lorn (11 Aug.) The followers of Bruce were entirely dispersed; and their leader, after a hasty flight, took refuge in the Isle of Rachrin. (Trivetus, p. 344. — Hemingford, p. 223.)

(2) This "Certification" appears to be a fragment of the Parliament Roll.

(1) See the last note in the preceding page.

(2) The Cardinal was dispatched as Legate à latere, for the purpose of completing the espousals of the Prince of Wales with Isabella of France. He departed from Carlisle about the 16th March; letters "de conductu" being issued on that day (Fœdera, N.E. vol. i. p. 1011.), by which directions were given for receiving him with due honour on his way homewards. The Cardinal also performed the ceremony of excommunicating Robert Bruce and his adherents: — "Venitque ad illum Parliamentum circa festum Cathedræ Sancti Petri, quidam Cardinalis Sabinensis, Magister Petrus Hispanus, missus à latere Papæ in Angliam, ad perficiendum ordinatum matrimonium inter primogenitum Regis Angliæ Eaduuardum, et filiam Regis Francorum Isabellam, secundum quod à Papa Bonefacio, tanquam pacis mediatore, prius ordinatum fuerat. Cui per Regem responsum est, paratum se implere quæ ordinata sunt, dummodo Rex Francorum velit ex parte sua quæ ad ipsum pertinent, adimplere. Dederat enim Rex Francorum, dum Vasconiam tenuerat, castrum quod Mali leonis dicitur, cuidam militi, qui illud adhuc detinebat, nec ad mandatum Regis Francorum illud curabat restituere. Ob quam causam fertur illud matrimonium hactenus fuisse dilatum. Rediit itaque Cardinalis Londinum, ut super his, certitudinem expectaret, et ecclesias Anglicanas depilaret." (Mat. West. p. 464.) "Venitque ibi cum magno apparatu Cardinalis Hispaniæ, missus à Domino Papa pro maritagio filii Regis Angliæ cum filia Regis Franciæ adimplendo, secundum ordinationem bonæ memoriæ quondam Papæ Bonifacii, qui super hoc, secundum quod prædictum est, certum ordinaverat. Factoque sermone et longo tractatu super bonum pacis, in fine revestitit se et cæteri episcopi qui aderant. Accensisque candelis et pulsatis campanis terribiliter excommunicaverunt Dominum Robertum de Brus cum fautoribus suis, tanquam hominem perjurum et perturbatorem injustum communis pacis et quietis." (Hemingford, p. 226.)

(1) There is an error in the enrolment of this teste, which is probably intended for the 20 March. The writs of the 10 March were tested "apud Lynstock."

(2) About Michaelmas 1306, the "new King," Robert Bruce, returned from the Isles, with many Irish and Scots, and stationed himself in Cantyre. He attempted to occupy his Lordship of Carrick, and obtained a temporary advantage over the English in the neighbourhood of Turnberry; but was repulsed by succours from the neighbouring garrisons. In the Spring of 1307 Aymer de Valence marched against Bruce, and a battle took place at Lowdon Hill. In this conflict, which, according to Trivetus, took place about Easter (26 March), Aymer de Valence was entirely defeated by Bruce; and, in three days afterwards, he was also enabled to compel Ralph de Monthermer to take shelter in the Castle of Ayr, which he besieged, until he was again put to flight by the English. The enemy compelled him to take refuge in the "Moors and Marshes," in which he could not be followed by his pursuers. (Hemingford, p. 225, 236, 237. — Matt. West. p. 456, 457.) Both Trivetus and Hemingford describe the circumstances of the refuge thus taken by Bruce, almost in the words of the writ; yet that document seems to shew that he was compelled to seek a temporary concealment before the battle of Lowdon Hill: — "Constituerat enim Dominus Rex in regno Scociæ tres custodes cum tribus aciebus: Dominum Henricum de Percy, Dominum Emericum de Walence, et Comitem Glocestriæ. At ille novus Rex obviavit aciei Domini Emerici de Walence et eam in fugam convertit, paucis tamen interfectis. Deinde infra triduum obviavit aciei Comitis Glocestriæ, et cæsis hinc inde multis, fugavit Comitem et eum obsedit in Castro de Are, quousque missis excercitibus à Rege liberatus est. Turbatusque Rex in hoc facto, misit et congregavit excercitum copiosum sub gravi forisfactura, præcipiens, ut essent Karleoli parati ad prælium in tres septimanas Sancti Johannis Baptistæ. Quibus ex jussu Regis advenientibus, processerunt cum impetu et irruerunt in eum, ita quod multis occisis, fugam iniit, latuitque ex tunc in moris et mariscis quasi cum decem millibus virorum pedestrium, nec poterant ad eum attingere, quoniam lapsus est semper ex manibus eorum." (Hemingford, p. 236, 237.) "Post Pascha Robertus de Brus, aucto jam suo exercitu, congressus cum Aymerico de Valentiis, ipsum compulit in fugam, paucis de his qui erant cum eo peremptis; infra triduum etiam sequens fugavit Comitem Gloverniæ multisque hinc inde occisis, ipsum obsedit in Castro de Are, quousque per exercitum à Rege missum fuit obsidio dissoluta. Extunc autem insequentibus eum Anglicis, fugit ad loca palustria et nemorosa in quibus, latibula quæritantem, comprehendere minime potuerunt." (Trivetus, p. 346.)
